

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO
3 1761 01038225 7

BALDWIN, of Spadina, in the County of York Upper Canada

Bequest of Rev. H. C. Scadding, D.D. to the Library of the University of Toronto
1901

La Rom
V8897g

A GRAMMAR

OF

THE SPANISH, PORTUGUESE,

AND

ITALIAN LANGUAGES,

INTENDED TO FACILITATE THE ACQUIRING OF THESE SISTER TONGUES, BY EXHIBITING IN A SYNOP-TICAL FORM THE AGREEMENTS AND DIF-FERENCES IN THEIR GRAMMA-TICAL CONSTRUCTION.

BY RICHARD WOODHOUSE.

LONDON:

52388
26/12/01

PRINTED FOR BLACK AND CO., BOOKSELLERS TO THE HON.
EAST INDIA COMPANY, LEADENHALL STREET.

1815.

TO JOHN ALDERSON, M.D. OF HULL.

DEAR SIR,

To you, with whom is associated in my mind every sentiment of affection and esteem, I have ventured to inscribe this work.

I am, dear Sir,

Your very affectionate Nephew

And humble Servant,

RICHARD WOODHOUSE.

AUGUST 24, 1815.

P R E F A C E.

A RESIDENCE of more than two years in Spain and Portugal rendered it necessary for the author of the following work to acquire some knowledge of the languages of those kingdoms; in doing which, the idea suggested itself to him, that, the two languages being originally the same, and their differences occasioned by various political and other causes, it would not be difficult to give, in a short grammatical arrangement, such a view of the leading points of agreement and difference, as should greatly facilitate the acquiring a knowledge of one language by him who had any acquaintance with the other. After this idea had occurred, and he had in part begun, for his own amusement, to carry the plan into execution, the extension of the scheme to the Italian language followed almost as a matter of course, on his having occasion to pay some attention to it.

Publication at first did not enter into his views ; but the work having gradually grown into its present shape, he has been induced, by the advice of those on whose judgement he is accustomed to rely, to hazard the printing of it.

The soldier and the tourist have here, in a volume that cannot be an incumbrance to either, most of what is conceived to be necessary for a grammar to contain of the languages of three of the countries which have always deservedly excited much interest and attention, and through which of late the paths to glory for the former and of pleasure to the latter have lain.

To obtain a correct knowledge of any language, a minute attention must be paid to its grammatical construction and arrangement. Grammars, however, in general, contain a mass of matter which rather impedes than advances the acquire-ment of the language. That the happy medium is hit upon in the following work, the author does not presume to hope. He has endeavoured to exhibit as concise a view of the three languages as he conceived was consistent with perspicuity : but he is sensible that much more might yet be done, the undertaking of which he does not feel equal to, and which therefore he must necessarily leave to abler hands, should the scheme of the following work be favourably received.

An arrangement of the different idioms in conversation, in epistolary correspondence, and of the various modes of salutation, would form a not uninteresting work, whilst to the speculative disciple of Horne Tooke a vast field is opened, in which he may with pleasure range in endeavouring to find out the various paths by which these languages have arrived at their present stage.

The common terms of grammar are supposed to be known by all who attempt the acquirement of a foreign language ; no definition of them is, therefore, entered into in the following work. The author, instead of attempting in this respect any new system, has merely adopted the most received divisions of language and of the parts of speech, without minutely scrutinizing their propriety.

A GRAMMAR

OF

THE SPANISH, PORTUGUESE, AND ITALIAN LANGUAGES.

THE ALPHABETS.

The Spanish Alphabet consists of Twenty-eight Letters.
 The Portuguese of Twenty-four Letters.
 The Italian of Twenty-two Letters.
 The English of Twenty-six Letters.

SPANISH.		PORTUGUESE.		ITALIAN.		ENGLISH.
Ah,	A.	Ah,	A.	Ah,	A.	A.
Bay,	B.	Bey,	B.	Bee,	B.	B.
Thay,	C.	Say,	C.	Tchee,	C.	C.
Chay,	Ch.	—	—	—	—	—
Day,	D.	De,	D.	Dce,	D.	D.
A,	E.	A,	E.	A,	E.	E.
Ayfe,	F.	Effe,	F.	Effe,	F.	F.
Hhay,	G.	Jay,	G.	Dgee,	G.	G.
Achey,	H.	Agha,	H.	Acca,	H.	H.
E,	I.	Ee.	I.	Ee,	I.	I.
Hhota,	J.	E, consoante,	J.	Ee, cons.	J.	J.
Ka,	K.	—	—	—	—	K.
Ayle,	L.	El,	L.	Elle,	L.	L.
Elye,	Ll.	—	—	—	—	—
ěmč,	M.	Em,	M.	Emme,	M.	M.
ěňč,	N.	En,	N.	Enne,	N.	N.
Enye,	Nn or Ñ.	—	—	—	—	—
O,	O.	O,	O.	O,	O.	O.
Pay,	P.	Pey,	P.	Pee,	P.	P.
Coo,	Q.	Ca,	Q.	Coo,	Q.	Q.
Aire,	R.	Erre,	R.	Erre,	R.	R.
ěssě,	S.	Es,	S.	Esse,	S.	S.
Tay,	T.	Tai,	T.	Te,	T.	T.
Oo,	U.	Oo,	U.	Oo,	U.	U.
Vay,	V.	Oo, consoante,	V.	Ov, cons.	V.	V.
—	—	—	—	—	—	W.
Ex or Ekkis,	X.	Shees,	X.	—	—	X.
E greiga,	Y.	Ypsilon,	Y.	—	—	Y.
Thatar,	Z.	Zea,	Z.	Dseta,	Z.	Z.

A perfect alphabet would have a distinct sign or letter for every different or elementary sound : there is, perhaps, no language so imperfect in this respect as our own : not only are different elementary sounds expressed by a combination of the signs of other elementary sounds, but, by a strange anomaly, the same sound is frequently designated by different signs and combinations of signs, and different sounds are expressed by the same signs. In these points, the three languages under consideration have greatly the advantage of the English, there being a much closer uniformity in the correspondence of the same sound to the same sign ; and although, in some combinations of the letters, the same signs are made the expressions of different sounds, yet, in general, the same combinations are pronounced alike in different words ; so that, having once acquired a knowledge of the mode of spelling, or expressing in writing, the various elementary sounds of these languages, there is no great difficulty in spelling or writing any word correctly, although there should have been no previous knowledge of such word : you have only to write it as similar sounds in the language are written, and to pronounce it as similar combinations of signs or letters are pronounced. Superior in this respect as these languages are to the English, their alphabets are not perfect ones, and the learner must carefully attend to the different sounds of which the same letter is the sign, according to its combination with other letters : for these, written directions may be given ; but for the different tones of some vowels in different words under an almost similar combination of consonants, his ear perhaps can be his only guide, as he becomes acquainted with the language, and when he has the facility of hearing it spoken by natives.

The classing of Ch, Ll, and Nn, in the Spanish alphabet as distinct letters must appear to most Englishmen absurd: the Royal Spanish Academy has so arranged them, because they are the signs of sounds quite distinct from the combined sound of the single letters; for ch has not the united sound of a c and an h, and the ll and nn are sounds totally different from those of l or n merely repeated. The alphabet would have been nearer a perfect one, had there been distinct simple signs for these sounds; but as such did not exist before in the language, it was a more easy course for the Academy to denominate the old double signs, letters, than to endeavour to bring into use three new signs. Some grammarians have classed also rr as a distinct letter; but as rr sounds only like r pronounced more emphatically, the Academy omitted it in their alphabet. The same principle which in the Spanish renders ch, ll, and nn distinct letters, would also evidently so class several of the Portuguese and Italian combinations; for example, ch, lh, nh, in the former, and gl and gn in the latter: but there is at present no authority to warrant such an alteration of the alphabet in those languages; whilst, in the Spanish, the recommendation of the Royal Academy has given currency to their classification.

Pronunciation of the Letters.

SPANISH.

A.

This letter has nearly the same sound in all three languages:—it has the broad sound of the a in the English words father, calm, bar, alms, vast. The Irish and Scotch pronunciation of this vowel is nearly that of the Spaniards, Portuguese, and Italians.

PORTUGUESE.

A.

ITALIAN.

A.

B.

B and v in Spanish are frequently confounded together, and may occasionally be written one for the other; their sound is one between that of the English b and v, softer and more lisping than either.

B.

B is pronounced in the Portuguese and Italian as in the English language.

B.

C.

C, as in the English, like k before a, o, u; before e and i like th in theme, thick, or rather like a lisping s. The ç, or c cedilla, is now obsolete, the Spanish Academy having brought into use the x in all words which were formerly spelt with ç. C before h forms a distinct letter, and is pronounced as follows:

C.

C like k before a, o, u; like s before e and i; and also before a, o, and u, when written ç, or c cedilla. C before h has the sound of ch in charity, cherry.

C.

C before a, o, u, and the consonants l and r, as in the English. Before e and i, like che and chi in cherry and chick. If two cs come before e and i, the former is sounded like t, and the latter like ch. If a vowel follows ci, the sound of the i is sunk in that of the other vowel.

Che and chi are always pronounced like ke and ki.

Cha, cho, chu, are pronounced like ca, co, cu, in English.

SPANISH.

Ch.

Ch, like the ch in charity, archer, and like the Italian c before e and i. In words derived from the Greek it retains the sound of k.

PORTUGUESE.

—

Ch, in Portuguese, though not classed as a distinct letter, has the same sound as in the Spanish.

ITALIAN.

—

Ch in Italian has the sound of k. The sound of the Spanish ch is expressed in Italian by c, before e and i; and before a, o, u, by ci.

D.

D, somewhat softer than in English, approaching to the sound of th, especially at the end of words.

D.

D, in Portuguese and Italian, as in the English.

D.

E.

This vowel is pronounced in these three languages like the English a in paper, or that sound of the English a which is esteemed the peculiar or genuine one in South Britain. It has an open and a close sound in the Portuguese and Italian; but it requires a nice ear to distinguish them.

E.

E.

F.

In Spanish, Portuguese, and in Italian, as in English.

F.

F.

G.

G before a, o, and u, as in English; but before e and i it has a sound peculiarly Spanish, a guttural one, to which there is nothing similar in the English language:—gh pronounced strongly through the throat comes the nearest to it; thus gel, gil, must be

G.

G before a, o, and u, as in English; before e and i, like j.

Gua sounds almost like the English gwa.

Gue, gui, as in Spanish, and as in the English words guest, gift,—except where not diphthongs, as arguir is pro-

G.

G before a, o, u, as in English; before e and i, like dge, dgi, the d not being sounded too strongly: when two *g*s come before e or i, the former sounds as d, and the latter as g: example, oggi pronounced odgi or odjee. If a vowel comes after gi, the gi is sound-pronounced as if ghel, ghil, and aspirated strongly through the throat like the German ch.

SPANISH.

Gue, gui, when diphthongs, sound like a hard ge, gi; but when written güe, güi, the sound of the u is preserved, and they are sounded as dissyllables, gu-e, gu-i.

G before consonants, as in English.

PORTUGUESE.

nounced as if written argueer.

Before consonants, as in English.

ITALIAN.

ed like j in English; as giardino pronounced jardino.

Gli in Italian has a peculiar sound, like ll in the English word million; and answering to that of the Spanish ll and Portuguese lh.

Gn also has a peculiar sound equivalent to ñ Spanish, nh Portuguese, and like ni, in minion; thus ignudo is pronounced as if written inniudo: these two last sounds of the g may be heard in the mode of pronouncing seraglio and tagnio. Ghe, ghi, sound like the gue and gui of the English words guest and guide.

Before the other consonants, as in English.

II.

H has no sound whatever, except after c and p, for which see under Ch and P.

II.

H has no sound except when combined with c, l, and n, for which see those letters.

II.

H has no sound whatever, except when combined with c and g, to which letters it gives a hard sound before e and i.

I.

I, like an English double e, or e long.

I.

I like the English ee, except before n

I.

I like the English e long, or ee.

SPANISH.

J.

Its sound is peculiar, and unknown in English pronunciation; it is the same as the g before e and i, a strong guttural sound, approximating to the sound which gh would have in English when aspirated strongly through the throat.

K.

K is pronounced as in the English, and also as c before a, o, and u, and qu before e and i.

L.

L is pronounced as in English.

Ll.

Ll has a sound resembling that of lli in

PORTUGUESE.

J.

and m, when the combination is peculiarly harsh and nasal.

J, nearly the sound of the English j; or as sj, the s not being very perceptibly sounded.

—

C before a, o, and u, and qu before e and i, are pronounced as the k in Spanish, in which language also the c and qu have in like manner the force of k.

L.

L is pronounced as in English; except before h, when lh has nearly the same sound as the Spanish ll, or the Italian gli.

—

The sound of the Spanish letter ll is

ITALIAN.

J.

J, like the Italian i, and now used instead of ii at the end of words, as studii is now written studj, &c., and also for hi at the beginning of words, as hier is now written jeri, &c. where it sounds like the English y.

—

In Italian, c before a, o, and u, and ch before e and i, supply the sound expressed in Spanish and English by k.

L.

L is pronounced as in English, except in the combination gli above mentioned.

—

The gli in Italian is used to express the

SPANISH.

the English word million, or gli in the word seraglio: thus llamar must be pronounced as if written in English leā-mar or gleā-mar; but, as the sound is unknown in genuine English, no exact rule can be given.

PORTUGUESE.

found in the Portuguese, and expressed in writing by the combination lh.

ITALIAN.

sound of the Spanish letter ll, and Portuguese letters lh.

M.

M as in English.

M.

M, as in English when placed before a vowel with which it is a syllable; but when at the end of words and preceded by an e, it has a nasal sound, like the French words vin, pain, &c. When preceded by a, o, or i, its sound is harshly and peculiarly nasal*.

M.

M, as in English.

N.

N as in English.

N.

N before a vowel with which it forms a syllable is pronounced as in English, otherwise it gives a nasal sound combined

N.

N as in English, except when preceded by a g; gn having the sound of the Spanish letter ñ or nn and the Portuguese letters nh, or nearly so: a sound

* The tittle or little dash, which the Portuguese call til, is set by them over some letters instead of writing m, as lẽ for lem, convẽ for convem, hũa for huma, sãõ for saom, razaõ for razaom. In Spanish the Nn is always written Ñ or ñ.

SPANISH.

PORTUGUESE.

ITALIAN.

with the vowel preceding it. Nh expresses the sound which in Spanish is given to the letter ñ or nn, and in Italian to the combination gn.

approaching to what nni have in English.

Nñ, or Ñ or ñ.*

—

—

Is pronounced nearly as the gn in poignant, and like the nh in Portuguese and gn in Italian, a sound approaching to that of ny in English, the n being one syllable and the y in another.

The sound of the Spanish letter ñ is found in the Portuguese expressed by nh.

The sound of the Spanish letter ñ is found expressed in Italian by gn.

The analogy of the sound of these letters is exemplified in the word señor, Spanish; senhor, Portuguese; signor, Italian; seigneur, French; senior, English.

O.

O.

O.

O as in English in more and tone.

O has two sounds, the one like the English o in store, and the other like u in full.

O, as in the Portuguese, has two sounds, close, like the English u in lull, when accented, and before l, m, n, r, and gn; otherwise open, and when preceded by i and u.

P.

P.

P.

P as in English, and when before h, the ph is pronounced like an f.

P as in English, and also ph as an f.

P as in English.

Q.

Q.

Q.

Q as in English, ex-

Q is pronounced

Q, as in English,

SPANISH.

cept before ue and ui, (when not written üe, üi,) where it has the sound of k, or as in the English word quay. Qüe, qüi, are pronounced nearly as English question.—Q is always followed by u.

R.

R has two sounds; the one soft, and the other hard and forcible. This is the only consonant (except the gutturals g, j, and x,) that is pronounced more strongly in Spanish than in English. It is very fully (and as it were rattlingly) sounded when doubled, whenever it begins a word, or is preceded by the consonants l, n, and s; also when it follows the consonant b, forming part of the Latin prepositions in derived words, in ab, ob, and sub: but where it follows b, and forms one syllable with the b and the following vowel, it is pronounced softly. In compounded words where it begins the second part of the compound, it retains like k in English, and is always followed by u.

PORTUGUESE.

R.

R as in English; but the double r and the r at the beginning of words are pronounced, as in the Spanish, very forcibly and emphatically.

ITALIAN.

and is also always followed by u.

R.

R as in English.

SPANISH.

its hard pronunciation: this pronunciation is like the English r sounded very emphatically and strongly.

S.

S as in English; but it is throughout distinctly and uniformly sounded so as to be clearly distinguished from the c before e and i, and from z.

T.

T as in English.

U.

U nearly as oo in English, or the u in truth, cruel, druid: between g or q, and e or i, it is not sounded, except in words where it does not form a diphthong, as in question, agüero, and there it retains its sound.

PORTUGUESE.

S.

S as in English, but between two vowels like a z.

T.

T as in English.

U.

U as oo in English or nearly so.

ITALIAN.

S.

In the beginning of words, in the words cosa and roso, in all adjectives in oso, the s is pronounced strong, as in English. In adjectives ending in ese, and words in uso, and between two vowels, it has the softer sound of the s in the English word miser, or of the letter z.

T.

T as in English. The old words in which the syllable ti was pronounced like tsi are now written with a z, as nazione is now nazione.

U.

U as oo in English, or nearly so.

SPANISH.

V.

V has a softer sound than the English v, and is confounded in its pronunciation in the Spanish with b: many words are written almost indifferently with a b or a v; but where the orthography is clear, the sound of the b or the v should be preserved as much as possible, as in vendido, sold; bendito, blessed.

PORTUGUESE.

V.

V, rather more softly than in English.

ITALIAN.

V.

V, more softly than in English.

X.

X has two distinct sounds: the first, like ks, it has when preceding a consonant, or a vowel with a circumflex () over it, as in existir, extension, as if eksistir, ekstension: the other sound is the guttural one of the g before e and i, and of the j; and it is so pronounced in all words, except before a consonant or a circumflexed vowel.

Rules for this latter sound cannot be given exactly, as was observed under G and J; which see.

X.

X is pronounced like the sh in English, except in the word axioma, where it is sounded like a c, and in exten aõ, extenuado, extulso, excellente, and some others beginning with e, where it sounds like cs or ks. Between two vowels it is pronounced like gz, as in ex-actamente, &c. except in Alexandre, paiam, puro, laxo, and some others, where it retains the sound of sh.

SPANISH.

Y.

Y has two sounds. When a vowel, it has the same sound as the i in Spanish: when a consonant, its sound is not very unlike the English consonant y, or like g in elegy: perhaps he slightly aspirated comes the nearest to its sound.

PORTUGUESE.

Y.

Y, as the Portuguese vowel i.

ITALIAN.

—

Z.

Z before all the vowels has the one uniform sound of the th in the English words thank, think, the same as that of the Spanish c before e and i. The pronunciation of this letter in Spanish is not quite so full as the English th; and especially at the end of words its sound approaches to that of an s.

Z.

Z is pronounced as in English, or nearly so.

Z.

Z has three sounds; the one like ds, another like ts, and the other like s. There does not seem to be any certain rule by which the pronunciation of this letter can be fixed. In all words that are written, both in Italian and English, with z, it is pronounced as ds: as in gazetta pronounced gadzetta. In words ending in anza, enze, and in onza, it is pronounced like ts or s.

THE ARTICLES.

The articles in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian, have their differences of cases, as in the English, distinguished by the aid of prepositions.

The definite articles are, in the

	SPANISH.		PORTUGUESE.		ITALIAN.		ENGLISH.
	Sing.	Plur.	Sing.	Plur.	Sing.	Plur.
Masc.	El,	los.	O,	os.	Il, lo,	I, gli.	The.
Fem.	La,	las.	A,	as.	La,	Le.	The.
Neut.	Lo,	none.	none.		none.		The.

and they are declined as follows ;

In the Masculine,

	SPANISH.		PORTUGUESE.		ITALIAN.		ENGLISH.
	Sing.	Plur.	Sing.	Plur.	Sing.	Plur.
N.	El,	los.	O,	os.	Il, lo,	I, gli.	The.
G.	De el, or del,	de los.	Do,	dos.	Del, dello,	dei, de', degli.	Of the.
D.	Para el, or a el,	{ para or à los. }	Ao, o,	aos, os.	Al, allo,	ai, a', agli.	To the.
A.	El, or al,	los, a los.	Ao, o,	aos, os.	Il, lo,	I, gli.	The.
Ab.	Del,	de los.	Do,	dos.	Dal, dallo,	dai, da', dagli.	From the.

In the Feminine,

	Sing.	Plur.	Sing.	Plur.	Sing.	Plur.
Nom.	La,	las.	A,	as.	La,	le.	The.
Gen.	De la,	de las.	Da,	das.	Della,	delle.	Of the.
Dat.	A la,	a las.	A',	às.	Alla,	alle.	To the.
Acc.	La, a la,	las, a las.	A,	as.	La,	le.	The.
Abl.	De la,	de las.	Da,	das.	Dalla,	alle.	From the.

The Spanish only has a neuter definite article, which is used solely in the singular number, and before an adjective put absolutely or substantively ; as lo bueno, lo malo, the good, the bad : it is declined like the masculine and feminine articles ; viz.

Nom.	Lo,	The.
Gen.	De lo,	Of the.
Dat.	A lo, or para lo,	To the.
Acc.	Lo, a lo,	The.
Abl.	Por, or de lo,	By or from thee,

In the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages, the indefinite article is, as in the French, the same word as that which is used to denote unity or one*: viz.

SPANISH.		PORTUGUESE.		ITALIAN.		ENGLISH.
Masc.	Fem.	Masc.	Fem.	Masc.	Fem.
Un,	Una.	Hum,	Huma.	Uno,	Una.	A or An.

Like the definite articles, their cases are marked by the aid of prepositions ; as,

SPANISH.		PORTUGUESE.		ITALIAN.		ENGLISH.
Masc.	Fem.	Masc.	Fem.	Masc.	Fem.
Nom. Un,	una.	Hum,	huma.	Uno,	una.	A or an.
Gen. De un,	de una.	De hum,	de huma.	D' uno,	d' una.	Of a or an.
Dat. A un,	a una.	A hum,	a huma.	Ad uno,	ad una.	To a or an.
Acc. Un,	una.	Hum,	huma.	Uno,	una.	A or an.
Abl. Por un,	por una.	Por hum,	por huma.	Da uno,	da una.	For a or an.

The Portuguese and Italians, in using the definite article in the ablative with the prepositions,

Portuguese	Em, Com,	} contract the preposition and article into one word ; as
Italian	In, Con,
English	In, With,

PORTUGUESE.		ITALIAN.
Em o, em os, into	No, nos.	In il, in lo, in i, in gli, into	Nel, nello, nei, negli.
Em a, em as, into	Na, nas.	In la, in le, into	nella, nelle.
Com o, com os, into	co, cos.	Con il, con lo, con i, con gli,	into col, collo, coi, cogli.
Com a, com as, into	Coa, coas.	Con la, con le, into	colla, colle.

* The English indefinite article a or an is derived from old Anglo-Saxon numerals ae and ane, signifying unity or one ; but there is an advantage in the present English mode of using different words for the indefinite article and the numeral one ; because a and an have frequently a meaning very distinct from one, which in the above languages is left in uncertainty, and to be gathered from the context, or from the emphasis ; as Can a man carry this load ?

The Italians, having two articles, il and lo, for the masculine gender, use the former before nouns beginning with a consonant, (except the letter s not followed by a vowel, called an impure s) and the latter before nouns beginning with a vowel, or an s followed by a consonant.

When the article is used before nouns beginning with a vowel, the final vowel of the article is retrenched; as l' amore: however, the plural feminine le is not abridged except the noun begin with the vowel e; nor the masculine plural gli, except the noun begin with the vowel i.

In Spanish some feminine nouns beginning with the vowel a have the masculine article el instead of the feminine la; thus they say el agua, el alma, el ala, el aguilá, el ave; the reason of which seems to be, that the sound of the two as, as in la alma, la ala, &c. would be less agreeable to the ear. Custom, however, has not made the rule absolute for all feminines in a; they still say la abeja, la afición, la afrenta, &c. In the plural number the feminine article is used to all these nouns, as las aguas, las almas, las abejas, &c.

The definite and indefinite articles are used before nouns in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages, in the same way as in the English; except, 1st, that the definite article is used in these languages,

No, but a horse can. Can one man carry this load? No, but two can.

Nouns are also declined in an indefinite sense in each of these three languages, as in the English, without any article, by the means of the prepositions.

where it is not in the English, before nouns taken in the whole extent of their signification; as Spanish Los hombres son mortales.

Portuguese Os homens são mortaes.

Italian Gli uomini sono mortali.

English Men are mortal.

Also, 2dly, Before the names of species and abstract terms; as Spanish El oro, la plata, el honor, el vicio.

Portuguese O ouro, a prata, a honra, o vicio.

Italian L'oro, l'argento, l'onore, il vizio.

English Gold, silver, honor, vice.

3dly, Nouns of measure, weight, and number, require the definite article although the indefinite one may be used in English; as

Spanish Un escudo la vara.

Portuguese $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{Huma coroa} \\ \text{or} \\ \text{Hum cruzado} \end{array} \right\}$ a vara.

Italian Un scudo la canna.

English A crown a yard.

4thly, The definite article is used before the names of empires, kingdoms, provinces, mountains, rivers, winds, &c.; as Spanish La Francia y la Inglaterra son dos reynos.

Portuguese A França e a Inglaterra são dous reinos.

Italian La Francia e l'Inghilterra sono due regni.

English France and England are two kingdoms.

These nouns however take no article when they are in the genitive case, nor after the prepositions, en (Spanish), em (Portuguese), in (Italian), in (English);—and also kingdoms of the same name as their metropolis require no article before them in any case.

5thly, When two nouns are put in apposition, the second only qualifying or explaining the first, the definite article is omitted before the latter.

And, 6thly, No article is used before an ordinal number; as Spanish	Libro primero,	Jorge tercero.

Portuguese	Libro primeiro,	Jorge terceiro.
Italian	Livro primo,	Georgio terzo.
English	Book the first,	George the third.

THE NOUNS.

The Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian nouns have, like the English ones, no declensions to denote their variations of cases, but are distinguished by the articles and prepositions.

Genders.

They have but two genders, the masculine and feminine.

Formation of the Plural.

The plural is formed in the Spanish and Portuguese by the addition of an s, or es, to the singular; and in the Italian (whose nouns all terminate with a vowel) the nouns masculine form their plural by the change of the vowel of the singular termination to an i, and the nouns feminine by change of the final vowel of the singular number to an e.—These will serve as the general rules, the exceptions are as follow :

In the Spanish, all nouns ending in a long or accented vowel, or in a consonant, form their plural by the addition of es to the singular number; as albalà, albalàes; verdad, verdades; and all nouns ending in a short or unaccented vowel, by the addition of s; as càrta, càrtas.

The same rule will hold good for the Portuguese, but there are many exceptions in this latter language: viz.

1. Nouns ending in al form their plural by changing the l to es; as animal, animales.

2. Nouns ending in el, by changing the l into is; as papel, papeis.

3. Nouns ending in m, by changing the m into ns; as homem, homens.

4. Nouns ending in il, by changing the l into s; as funil, funis; except aquatil, facil, pensil, &c., which change the il into ies; as aquaties, facies, &c.

5. Nouns ending in ol and ul change the l into es; as anzol, anzoes; sul, sues.

6. There is no certain rule for the plural of nouns in aō: some make aēs, others aōs, and others oēs; as Alemaō, Alemaēs; cididaō, cididaōs; esquadraō, esquadroēs.

In the Italian, nouns in a are feminine, and form their plural in e; as la casa, le case. Except, 1st, All nouns in ca and ga, which take an h between the c and g and the final vowel, to preserve the same sound of the c and g; as la manica, le maniche; la piaga, le piaghe. 2nd, Nouns in tà are the same in the plural as in the singular. 3rd, The masculine exceptions, as papa, profeta, form their plural in i; as papi, profeti: also potesta, when masculine signifying power, is the same in the plural as in the singular; but when feminine it denotes capacity or ability, and follows the general rule.

Nouns in e, whether masculine or feminine, form their plural in i, except mille, a thousand, which makes mila, and re, specie, effigie, l'esequie, which have no change of termination for their plural.

Nouns in i are the same in the plural as in the singular.

Nouns in o are generally masculine, and follow the rule by forming their plural in i; except the following, which form it in a, and are feminine in the plural: l'anello, le anella; il braccio, le braccia; il budello, il calcagno, il cerchio, il ciglio, il corno, il dito, il ditello, il filo, il frutto, il gesto, il grido, il guscio, il ginocchio, il labro, il lenzuolo, il legno, il melo, il membro, il muro, il migliaio, il miglio, l'orecchio, l'osso, il paio, il pomo, il pugno, lo stajo, il riso, l'uovo, il rubbio, il vestigio. Nouns in co and go, of two syllables, take an h in the plural after the c and g; as il fuoco, i fuochi: except il porco and il Greco, which make i porci, i Greci. The other nouns in co and go, of more than two syllables, do not take the h; as amico, amici; except albergo, antico, beccafico, bifolco, catafalco, dialogo, jamingo, reciproco, simiscalco, tedesco, traffico, which make alberghi, &c. Astrologo makes both astrologhi and astrologi. Nouns in io drop the o in forming their plural, if the io is a monosyllable; as bacio, baci: but if it is a dissyllable they take a long i or j; as natio, natj.

Nouns in u are the same in the plural as in the singular.

Observations on the Cases and Declensions.

The nouns remaining unchanged in termination in all their cases, it is not necessary to give any examples of their declension (if such it can with any propriety be called). The examples which have been given at length of the modes of marking the different cases of the articles will be sufficient guides for those of the nouns. Where the noun is used without any article, its case will be marked, as in English, by its situation in the sentence, or by a preposition. However,

In the Spanish and Portuguese, the accusative case of a personal noun is always marked by the preposition à, both with and without an article, whilst the accusative case of nouns not personal is like the nominative case ; as,

Span. Pedro ama à Pablo. El hombre ama la virtud.

Port. Pedro ama a Pablo. O homem ama a virtude.

Ital. Pietro ama Paoli. L'uomo ama la virtù.

Engl. Peter loves Paul. Man loves virtue.

In the Italian, the accusative and nominative cases of nouns are, as in the English, similar.

Augmentatives and Diminutives.

Among the peculiarities which the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages have in common, are those of augmenting and diminishing the signification of words by the addition of certain syllables to the end of them.

In the Spanish, the syllables augmenting the signification are on, azo, ona, aza, ote ; as from Hombre, a man ; hombro, hombrazo, hombroazo, a great, big, or large man : Muger, a woman ; mugerona, mugeraza, mugeironaza, a great woman, a large gross woman : Grande, great ; grandon, grandote, grandazo, very great, huge.

In the Portuguese they are zarrãõ, eirãõ, eirona, ono, ona ; as from Homem, a man ; homemzarrãõ, a great man : Tolo, a fool ; toleirãõ, toleirona, a great fool : Molher, a woman ; molherona, a large woman.

In the Italian they are one, accio ; as Cappello, a hat ; cappellone, a great hat ; cappellaccio a great ugly hat : Sala, a hall ; salone, a large hall ; salaccia, a great nasty hall : also in ame, denoting abundance ; as gentame, abundance of people.

In the Spanish the diminutives are ico, ica, illo, illa, ito, ita, uelo, uela, ete, in, ejo, and en : as Chico, a young one, or small ; chiquito, chiquillo, chicuelo, chiquituelo, a pretty little one, or very small : Calco, bald ; calvete, rather bald : Espada, sword ; espadin, a little sword : Animal, an animal ; animalejo, an animalcule.

In the Portuguese, in inho, inha, zinho, zinha : as Bicho, a worm ; bichinho, a little worm : Irmãõ, a brother ; irmãõzinho, a dear little brother.

In the Italian, in ino, ina, etto, etta, ello, ella, uccio, uccia, uzzo, icciuolo : as Povero, poor ; poverino, poveretto, poverello, poverina, a poor little man or woman : Uomo, a man ; uomuccio, uomuzzo, uomicciuolo, a dwarf, or poor little man, &c.

THE ADJECTIVES.

In the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages, the adjective is not an indeclinable word, as in the English; but it has a masculine and feminine, a singular and plural termination, agreeing with its noun in number and gender. Like the noun, and in this respect similar to the adjective in English, it has no variation of termination for the different cases.

The rules which have been given for the formation of the plural number of the nouns will serve for that of the adjectives, with the sole exception of the Italian adjectives in e, whose plural feminine change the final e of the singular to an i.

The rules for the formation of the feminine are very simple; as the feminine is formed, in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian, by the addition of an a to the masculine singular, where it terminates in a consonant, and by the change of o to a where the masculine singular terminates in the former vowel. Adjectives ending in e are common to both genders in all three languages.

In the Italian, adjectives all end either in o or e in the masculine singular; the plural of the former is in i for the masculine and e for the feminine, and of the latter; in i for both genders.

To the general rule, in Spanish and Portuguese, for the formation of the feminine of adjectives ending in a consonant in the masculine singular, there are some exceptions: viz.

In the Spanish, some adjectives in l are common to both genders; as maternal, fiel, facil, azul: others in r; as secular, familiar, superior, inferior: others in s; as cortes, torrontes, montes: others in z; as capaz, soez, feliz, veloz: and also some in a and i, common to both genders; as Persa, escrita, Moscovita, Valadi, Turqui.

In the Portuguese, the adjectives ending in ez and l are for the most part common to both genders: some few, as Francez, Portuguez, Hespanhol, follow the general rule, and make Franceza, Portugueza, Hespanhola.

Of the adjectives, some are placed before and others after the noun, and it is difficult to give any certain general rule for their position. If of one or two syllables they generally precede, and if of more than two syllables succeed, the noun. If there are more than one adjective they are all placed after the noun, as are also adjectives of names of nations, of colours, of figure, or expressive of some natural or physical quality.

When the following adjectives are placed before the noun, they lose the final vowel of the masculine singular:

Spanish—Bueno, malo, alguno, primero, uno, ninguno, postrero: and also grande becomes gran; santo, san; and ciento, cien.

Portuguese—Cento becomes cem.

Italian—Uno, buono, and likewise grande, santo, bello, quello, make gran, san, bel, and quel: the first, gran, remains so even before a substantive of the feminine gender*.

Adjectives of dimensions come after the words of the

* See Observations on the Retrenchment of the Vowel in the Italian Language, at the end of this work, measure of magnitude, as in the English, but are preceded by the preposition de, de, di; as Spanish—Seis pies, de alto, de ancho, de largo, &c.

Portuguese—Seis pies, de alto, de largo, de comprido, &c.

Italian—Sei piedi, di alto, di ampio, di lungo, &c.

English—Six feet, high, broad, long.

Degrees of Comparison.

1st, The comparative is formed by the aid of the adverbs: viz.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
mas	mais	piu	more
menos	menos	meno	less

as,

mas o me- nos bello	mais ó menos bello	piu o meno bello	more or less handsome.
------------------------	-----------------------	---------------------	---------------------------

There are however in each language some adjectives of the comparative degree, which are such of themselves without the addition of the adverbs; as,

mejor	melhor	megliore & meglio	better
peor	peor	peggiore	worse
mayor	mayor	maggiore	greater menor	menor	minore	less
mas	mais	piu	more
menos	menos	meno	less.

2nd, The superlative is formed by the aid of the same adverbs accompanied by the definite article; as el mas } la mas } lo mas }	o mais a mais	il piu } la piu }	the most.

el menos } la menos } lo menos }	o menos a menos	il meno } la meno }

as,

el mas bello	o mas bello	il piu bello	the handsomest or most handsome.
--------------	-------------	--------------	-------------------------------------

Besides which mode, the superlative degree is also formed by the addition, to the positive degree, omitting its final vowel, of

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
ísimo	íssimo	issimo	est.
as,
bellísimo	bellíssimo	bellissimo	handsomest.

There are a few exceptions to this rule in the Spanish and Portuguese languages ; as

In the Spanish, bueno makes bonísimo ; fuerte, fortísimo ; fiel, fidelísimo : and the adjectives in ble change that syllable into bili ; as amable, amabilísimo : bueno also makes optimo ; malo, pesimo ; grande, maximo ; pequeño, minimo ; baro, infimo ; and alto, supremo.

In the Portuguese, frio makes frigidísimo ; antigo, antiguíssimo ; capaz, capacíssimo ; nobre, nobilíssimo ; acrr, acerrimo ; rico, riquíssimo ; bom, boníssimo ; fiel, fidelíssimo ; sagrado, sacratíssimo.

The word than following the comparative degree of an adjective is rendered differently in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian ; as,

In the Spanish.—1st, When it is followed by a noun or pronoun, it is rendered by que ; as mas virtuoso que Socrate,—que tu, more virtuous than Socrates,—than thou. 2nd, Than what are rendered by de lo que ; as mas sabio de lo que pensaron, wiser than what they thought, or wiser than they thought. 3rd, Before a cardinal number or noun of quantity, by de ; as tenemos mas de dos libros, we have more than two books.

In the Portuguese.—1st, Than is rendered by que ; as mais branco que a neve, whiter than snow. 2nd, Than what, by do que ; as isto he mais do que eu he disse, this is more than what I told him. 3rd, Than, after superior, inferior, and some others, is rendered by the dative case; as o outro he superior a este, the other is superior to this.

In the Italian.—1st, Than is rendered by the genitive case; as piu chiaro del sole, clearer than the sun; piu dotto di Cicerone, more learned than Cicero; piu stimato di me, more esteemed than I; piu bello di mio fratello, more handsome than my brother. 2nd, Except than be followed by an adjective, a verb, or an adverb, when it is rendered by che; as piu bianco che giallo, more white than yellow; piu povero che ricco, more poor than rich; scrive piu che non parla, he writes more than he speaks; e meglio tardi che mai, it is better late than never.

The Cardinal Numbers are,

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Uno, una, un	Hum, huma	Un, uno, una	One dos	dous, duas	duoi, due	two tres	tres	tre	three quatro	quatro	quattro	four cinco	cinco	cinque	five seis	seis	sei	six siete	sete	sette	seven ocho	outo u oito	otto	eight nueve	nove	nove	nine diez	dez	dieci	ten
once	onze	undici	eleven doce	doze	dodici	twelve
trece	treze	tre dici	thirteen catorce	quatorze	quattordici	fourteen quince	quinze	quindici	fifteen
diez y seis	dezaseis	sedici	sixteen
diez y siete	dezasete	dieci sette, di- ciasette	seventeen

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
diez y ocho	dezouto	dieci otto, diecia otto	eighteen diez y nueve	dezanove	dieci nove, diecia nove	nineteen veinte	vinte	venti	twenty veinte y uno, &c.	vinte e hum, &c.	ventuno	twenty-one treinta	trinta	trenta	thirty quarenta	quarenta	quarenta	forty cinquenta	cincoenta	cinquanta	fifty sesenta	sessenta	sessanta	sixty setenta	setenta	settanta	seventy ochenta	oitenta	ottanta	eighty noventa	noventa	nonanta	ninety ciento	cento	cento	one hundred doscientos	duzentos	ducento	two hundred trecientos	trecentos	trecento	three hundred quatrocientos	quatrocentos	quattrocento	four hundred quinientos	quinhentos	cinquicento	five hundred seiscientos	seiscentos	seicento	six hundred setecientos	setecentos	settecento	seven hundred ochocientos	outocentos	ottocento	eight hundred novecientos	novecientos	novecento	nine hundred mil	mil	mille	a thousand dosmil, &c.	dous mil	due mila	two thousand millon, &c.	milhaõ or conto, &c.	millione or milione, &c.	a million, &c.

The Ordinal Numbers are,

Primero	Primeiro	Primo	First
segundo	segundo	secondo	second tercero	terceiro	terzo	third quarto	quarto	quarto	fourth quinto	quinto	quinto	fifth sexto	sexto	sexto	sixth septimo	setimo	settimo	seventh octavo	oitavo	ottavo	eightth
nono	nono	nono	ninth decimo	decimo	decimo	tenth undecimo	undecimo or un- zeno	undecimo	eleventh

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
duodecimo	duodecimo	duodecimo	twelfth tercio decimo	decimo tercio	decimo terzo	thirteenth quarto decimo	decimo quarto	decimo quarto	fourteenth quinto decimo	decimo quinto	decimo quinto	fifteenth decimo sexto	decimo sexto	decimo sexto	sixteenth decimo septimo	decimo setimo	decimo settimo	seventeenth decimo octavo	decimo oitavo	decimo ottavo	eighteenth decimo nono	decimo nono	decimo nono	nineteenth vigesimo	vigesimo or ven- tesimo	ventesimo	twentieth vigesimo primo	vigesimo pri- meiro	ventesimo primo	one-and-twen- tieth
trigesimo	trigesimo	trentesimo	thirtieth
quadragésimo	quadragésimo or quarentesimo	quarentesimo	fortieth quingentesimo	quingentesimo	cinquantesimo	fiftieth sexagesimo	sexagesimo	sessantesimo	sixtieth
septuagesimo	septuagesimo	settantesimo	seventieth
octogesimo	octagesimo	ottantesimo	eightieth
nonagesimo	nonagesimo	nonantesimo	ninetieth centesimo	centesimo	centesimo	one hundredth ducentesimo	duzentesimo	ducentesimo	two hundredth trecentesimo	trecentesimo	trecentesimo	three hundredth quadringentesimo	quadringentesimo	quattrocente- simo	four hundredth quingentesimo	quingentesimo	cinquecentesimo	five hundredth sexcentesimo	sexcentesimo	seicentesimo	six hundredth septingentesimo	septingentesimo	settecentesimo	seven hundredth octogentesimo	octogentesimo	ottocentesimo	eight hundredth nonagesimo	nonagesimo	novcentesimo	nine hundredth milesimo, &c.	millesimo, &c.	millesimo, &c.	one thousandth, &c.

THE PRONOUNS.

The Pronouns may be divided into four species: viz. Personal, Demonstrative, Possessive, and Relative.

The personal pronouns are,

	SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
First Pers. Sing.	Yo	Eu	Io	I.
	Plur. Nos or nosotros, and fem. nosotras	} nos	noi	we.
Second Pers. Sing.	Tu
	Plur. Vos or vosotros, and fem. vosotras	} vos	voi	you or ye.
Third Pers. Sing. Masc.	El
	Fem. Ella	ella	ella or essa	she.
	Neut. Ello	—	—	it.
	Plur. Masc. Ellos	elles	eglino	} they.
	Fem. Ellas	ellas	elleno, esse

They are declined as follows :

First Person.—Singular Number.

	SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
N.	Yo	Eu	Io	I.
G.	De mi	De mim	Di me	Of me, mine.
D.	A, or para, mi, me	A, or para, mim, me	A me, mi	To me.
A.	Me, a mi	A mim, me	Me, mi	Me.
Ab.	Por mi, conmigo	Por mim, comigo	Dame, con meco	} For, with me.

Plural Number.

Nom.	Nos or nosotros, nosotras	} Nos	Noi	We.
Gen.	De nosotros, de nosotras,
Dat.	A nosotros, nos, a nosotras	} A nos, nos	A noi, ci	To us.
Acc.	Nos, a nosotros, a nosotras
Abl.	Por nosotros, por nosotras	} Por nos	Da noi	For, by, us.

Second Person.—Singular Number.

N.	Tu	Tu	Tu	Thou.
G.	De ti	De ti	Di te	Of thee, thine.
D.	A ti, te	A ti, te	A te, ti	To thee.
A.	Te, a ti	A ti, te	Te, ti	Thee.
V.	Tu	Tu	Tu	Thou.
A.	Por ti, contigo	De ti, contigo	Da te, conte, teco	For, from, thee.

Second Person.—Plural Number.

	SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Nom.	Vos, vosotros, vosotras	} Vos	Voi	You or Ye.
Gen.	De vosotros, de vosotras	} De vos	Di voi	Of you, yours.
Dat.	A vosotros, os, a vosotras	} A vos, vos	A voi, vi	To you.
Acc.	A vosotros, os, a vosotras	} A vos, vos	Voi, vi	You.
Voc.	Vosotros, vosotras	} Vos	Voi	Ye or you.
Abl.	Por vosotros, por vosotras	} Por vos	Da voi	From you.

Third Person.—Masculine Gender.Singular Number.

Nom.	El	Elle	Egli	He.
Gen.	De el	D' elle	Di lui	Of him, his.
Dat.	A el, le	A elle, lhe	A lui, gli	To him, him.
Acc.	A el, le	A elle, o	Lui, lo	Him.
Abl.	Por el	Por elle	Da lui	From him.

Plural Number.

Nom.	Ellos	Elles	Eglio	They.
Gen.	De ellos	D' elles	Di loro	Of them, theirs.
Dat.	A ellos, les	A elles, lhes	A loro, loro, li	To them.
Acc.	A ellos, los	A elles, os	Loro, li	Them.
Abl.	Por ellos	Por elles	Da loro	From them.

Third Person.—Feminine Gender.Singular Number.

Nom.	Ella	Ella	Ella, essa	She.
Gen.	De ella	D' ella	Di lei	Of her, hers.
Dat.	A ella, le	A ella, lhe	A lei, le	To her.
Acc.	A ella, la	A ella, a	Lei, la	Her.
Abl.	Por ella	Por ella	Da lei	From her.

Third Person, Feminine.—Plural Number.

	SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Nom.	Ellas	Ellas	Elleno, esse	They.
Gen.	De ellas	D' ellas	Di loro	Of them, theirs.
Dat.	A ellas, les	A ellas, lhes	A loro, loro	To them.
Acc.	A ellas, las	A ellas, as	Loro, le	Them.
Abl.	Por ellas	Por ellas	Da loro	From them.

Neuter Gender.—Singular Number.

Nom.	Ello, lo	—	—	It.
Gen.	De ello, delo	—	—	Of it, its.
Dat.	A ello, alo	—	—	To it.
Acc.	Lo, lo	—	—	It.
Abl.	Por ello, por lo	—	—	For it.

Besides the foregoing, there is another personal pronoun which has no nominative case, and is the same in the masculine and feminine genders, and singular and plural numbers : viz.

	SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Gen.	De si	De si	De se	Of himself, herself, itself, themselves.
Dat.	A si, se	A si, se	A se, si	To &c.
Acc.	Se, a si	Se, a si	Si, se	Himself &c.
Abl.	Por si	Por si	Da se	For himself &c.

All the foregoing pronouns are frequently compounded with the pronouns

	SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Sing.	Mismo, misma	Mesmo, mesma	Stesso, stessa	Self.
Plur.	Mismos, mismas	Mesmos, mesmas	Stessi, stesse	Selves.
as,	Yo mismo	Eu mesmo	Io stesso	I myself.

The personal pronouns when in the dative and accusative cases are usually in English, placed after the verb; but in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages they are most commonly placed before the verb, between it and its nominative case when expressed. Where two pronouns occur together, the first person precedes the second and third, and the second person the third ; but although they are commonly placed before the verb, yet the construction of the sentence is frequently as good when they follow the verb : indeed, the rule is always to place them after, when the verb is in the infinitive or imperative mood, or a gerund.

In the Spanish, you may say me amas, or amas me, indifferently ; but if the nominative be expressed, you must say los buenos me aman, and not aman me. In the beginning of a sentence you may say preguntaràn me acaso, or acaso me preguntaràn, but not acaso me preguntaràn. When nos, vos, or os, follow the verb, it drops its final consonant ; as salgamonos for salgamos nos ; and when me, te, le, la, lo, se, les, los, las, follow the verb, they are written with it as one word, although there may be more than one pronoun ; as busquenmele.

In the Portuguese, him, her, them, and it, are expressed by o, a, os, and as, either before or after the verb : in the second person singular and first and second persons plural, when they come after the verb, the verb loses its final s, and the pronoun takes an l before it ; also after the infinitive mood the final r of the verb is sunk, and the pronoun likewise augmented by an l ; as tu amalo, para amalo.

In the Italian, loro always comes after the verb ; and, whether before or after the verb, us, you, me, thee, him, her, it, when in the dative or accusative cases, are expressed by ci, vi, mi, ti, si, gli, &c.

In addressing each other, the Spaniards, Portuguese, and Italians do not, as the English, make use of the pronoun of the second person plural, you, but of a noun with a possessive pronoun, or of the pronouns personal of the third person: thus, to express You are in the right, the Spaniard would say

		Vuestra merced	}	tiene razon. written	Vm.
contracted into and pronounced	}	Usted	}
The Portuguese,		Vossa merce	}	tem razaõ. written	Vmce
	pronounced	Vosmerce
The Italian,		Vostra signoria	}	ha ragione. written	V. S. pronounced	Vossignoria making use of the personal pronouns of the third persons where vm., vmce., v. s., cannot be used. In the Italian, however, Vossignoria is become obsolete among the fashionable Italians, and it is better to use Il signore, La signora, and the pronouns of the third person when you address another.

The English use the verb to be, impersonally, in expressing the phrases, It is I, It is thou, &c. ; but the idiom of Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian, requires the verb to agree with its nominative case: thus, It is I, It is thou, must be rendered in Spanish by	Soy yo,	Eres tu.

Portuguese	Sou eu,	Es tu.
Italian	Sono io,	Sei tu, &c.

The Demonstrative Pronouns are,

in the

SPANISH.		PORTUGUESE.		ITALIAN.		ENGLISH.
Sing.	Plur.	Sing.	Plur.	Sing.	Plur.	Sing.	Plur.
M. Este,	estos.	Este,	estes.	Questo, costui,	questi, costoro.	} This, these.
F. Esta,	estas.	Esta,	estas.	Questa, costei,	queste, costoro.
N. Esto,	—	Isto,	—	Questo, cio,	—
M. Ese,	esos.	Esse,	essos.	Quel, quello,	quelli, quei,	} That, those.
F. Esa,	esas.	Essa,	essas.	& colui,	coloro.
N. Eso,	—	Isso,	—	Quella, colei,	quelle, coloro.
M. Aquel,	aquellos.	Aquello, aquellos.	Colui,	coloro.	} That, those.
F. Aquella,	aquellas.	Aquella, aquellas.	Colei,	coloro.
N. Aquello,	—	Aquillo,	—	—		—

In the Spanish and Portuguese, the above demonstrative pronouns are frequently compounded with the adjective.

SPANISH.		PORTUGUESE.		ENGLISH.
Otro,	otra.	Outro,	outra.	Other ; as,
Estotro,	estotra.	Estoutro,	estoutra.	This other.
Esotro,	esotra.	Essoutro,	essoutra.	} That other, &c.
Aquelotro,	aquellaotra.	Aquelloutro,	aquelloutra.

The different cases of these pronouns are formed by the aid of the prepositions, in the same manner as those of the articles and nouns. In the genitive cases of the Spanish and Portuguese there is an ellipsis of the vowel e of the preposition de, making d'este, d'ese, d'aquel, &c. ; also in the Portuguese, when the preposition em comes before a demonstrative pronoun, custom has authorized its being changed into an n ; as em este, &c. are written and pronounced n'este, &c.

In the Italian, questi and quegli are often used for the singular ; as Questi fu felice, quegli sfortunato, This man was happy, that unfortunate ; but only when speaking of a man, or a higher rational being : in speaking of a beast, animal, or inanimate thing, questo and qual are used.

The Possessive Pronouns are,

in the

SPANISH.		PORTUGUESE.		ITALIAN.		ENGLISH.
Singular Number.
Masc.	Fem.	Masc.	Fem.	Masc.	Fem.
Mio,	mia.	Meu,	minha.	Mio,	mia.	My, mine.
Tuyo,	tuya.	Teu,	tua.	Tuo,	tua.	Thy, thine.
Suyo,	suya.	Seu,	sua.	Suo,	sua.	His, her, hers.
Nuestro,	nuestra.	Nosso,	nossa.	Nostro,	nostra.	Our, ours.
Vuestro,	vuestra.	Vosso,	vossa.	Vostro,	vostra.	Your, yours.
Suyo,	suya.	Seu,	sua.	Loro,	loro.	Their, theirs.

Plural Number.

Mios,	mias.	Meus,	minhas.	Miei,	mie.	My, mine.
Tuyos,	tuyas.	Teus,	tuas.	Tuoi,	tue.	Thy, thine.
Suyos,	suyas.	Seus,	suas.	Suoi,	sue.	His, her, hers.
Nuestros,	nuestras.	Nossos,	nossas.	Nostri,	nostre.	Our, ours.
Vuestros,	vuestras.	Vossos,	vossas.	Vostri,	vostre.	Your, yours.
Suyos,	suyas.	Seus,	suas.	Loro,	loro.	Their, theirs.

In the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages the possessive pronouns do not agree in number and gender, as in the English language with the possessor, but with the person or thing possessed.

Their variation of cases is marked, like those of the articles and nouns, by the aid of prepositions; but it must be remembered that the Portuguese and Italians make use of the definite article before these pronouns; as,

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Mi libro,	O meu libro,	Il mio libro,	My book.

except before nouns of dignity and relationship; as,

PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Vossa magestade,	Vostra maesta,	Your majesty.
Meu pai,	Mio padre,	My father.

In the Spanish, mio, tuyo, suyo, lose the last syllable when they precede the noun; as Mi patria, tu padre, su fortuna. Had they followed, they would have retained the syllables; as Patria mia, padre tuyo, fortuna suya:

In the Spanish, as well as in the Portuguese and Italian, when these pronouns are used relatively, that is, without a substantive expressed, the definite article is used before them ; as,

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Su padre y el mio,	Seu pay e o meu,	Suo padre e il mio,	Your father and mine.

except after the verb to be, when the article is omitted in each language ; as,

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Es mio,	He meu,	E mio,	It is mine.
Es suyo,	He seu,	E suo,	It is yours.

The second person singular, as appears from the foregoing examples, is expressed by the pronoun of the third person singular; and not, as in English, by the pronoun of the second person plural.

When the possessive pronoun in English is prefixed to a noun expressing any part of the body, it must be rendered in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian, in general, by the definite article with a personal pronoun preceding the verb ; as,

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
El me diò la mano,	Elle me deu a maõ,	Egli mi diedi or die la mano,	He gave me his hand.
Me duele la cabeza,	Me doe a cabeça,	Mi duole la testa,	My head aches.

The Relative Pronouns are,

in the

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Quien, quienes,	Quem,	Che and chi,	Who.
Que,	Que,	Che,	That, and what?
El qual, la qual,	Oqual, aqual,	Il qual, la quale,	} Which.
Los quales, las quales, qual?	Os quaes, as quaes, qual?	I quali, le quali, quale?
Cuyo, cuya,	Cujo, cuja,	} Cui,	Whose.
Cuyos, cuyas,	Cujos, cujas,

Their variation of cases is marked by the aid of the prepositions.

In Spanish, quien makes quienes in the plural; que is common to both numbers; qual makes quales, and cuyo cuya, cuyos cuyas.

In Portuguese, quem and que are common, but qual makes quaes in the plural, and cujo cuja, cujos cujas.

In Italian, who, when not an interrogative, is che; when interrogative it is expressed by chi. It is also more received to use che for who, which, and that, as a relative, than quale, quali, il quale, i quali, laquale, lequali. The Italian idiom for whose is slightly different from that of the English, Spanish, and Portuguese. In the first of these, whose has no variation either of number, case, or gender: in the Spanish and Portuguese it has a masculine and feminine, with singular and plural terminations agreeing, like the adjectives and possessive pronouns, with the substantive or thing possessed; whilst in the Italian it has scarcely varied from the genitive case of the pronoun chi, who; being expressed by di cui and di chi; or by cui placed between the definite article and the substantive. Whose may be expressed in the Spanish and Portuguese also, as in the Italian and in the English, by the genitive case of the pronouns: viz. in

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ENGLISH.
Quem, que, elqual,	Quem, que, aquel.	Who, which,

In the Spanish and Portuguese, quien and quem are used only for persons, que for both persons and things; when used interrogatively, the former are used for persons, and the latter for things. Quien and quem are never used as relatives to nouns or pronouns in the nominative and accusative cases, they may be so used in the genitive, dative, and ablative cases.

Examples.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
¿Quien es el hombre ?	Quem he o homem ?	Chi è l' uomo ?	Who is the man ?
¿Qual es el hombre ?	Qual he o homem ?	Quale è l' uomo ?	Which is the man ?
¿Que es el hombre ?	Que he o homem ?	Che è l' uomo ?	What is the man ?
¿Que hombre es aquel ?	Que homem e aquele ?	Che uomo è quel ?	What man is that ?
El hombre que, and never quien.	O homem que, and never quem.	L' uomo che, or l' uomo il quale,	} The man who.
El hombre cuya casa.	O homem cuja casa.	L' uomo la cui casa.
¿Cuya es aquella casa ?	Cuja he aquella casa ?	A cui è la casa ?	Whose house is that ?
Cuyas bellezas.	Cujas bellezas.	{ Le cui bellezze, or Le di cui bellezze, }	} Whose beauties.
A cuyo padre, or Al padre de quien.	A cujo padre, or Ao padre de quem.	{ Al cui padre, or Al di cui padre, or Al padre di cui. }
Yo, que amo. and not Yo, quien.	Eu, que amo, and not Eu, quem.	{ Io, che amo, }	1, who love.

Mixed Pronouns.

In the Portuguese and Italian languages, from custom in pronunciation and writing, a class of pronouns has arisen called mixed, that is, two pronouns coming together form but one word: this in reality is only a contraction; but as this class of pronouns forms a great difficulty in learning these languages, grammarians have given the following list:

PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Mixed: Uncompounded.	Mixed. Uncompounded.
Mo, Me o.	{ Melo, Mi lo. Mene*, Mi ne. }	} Me of it, him; it to me.
Ma, Me a.	{ Mela, Mi la. }

* The particle ne, signifying some, or of it, is not found classed among the pronouns, although from this use of it it ought to be so, and also as the poets use it for ci, us.

PORTUGUESE.		ITALIAN.		ENGLISH.
Mixed.	Uncom- pounded.	Mixed.	Uncom- pounded.
Mos,	Me os.	Meli,	Mi li.	} Me of them. } Them to me.
Mas,	Me as.	Mele,	Mi le.
Te,	Te o.	{ Telo, Tene,	Ti lo.	} Thee of it or him, or } it to thee.
Ta,	Te a.		Tela,
Tos,	Te os.	Teli,	Ti li.	} Thee of them, or } Them to thee.
Tas,	Te as.	Tele,	Ti le.
Selo,	Se lo.	{ Selo, Sene,	Se lo.	} It to him, her, } or } themselves.
Sela,	Se la.		Sela,
Selos,	Se los.	Seli,	Se li.	} Them to him, her, or } themselves.
Selas,	Se las.	Sele,	Se le.
Lho,	Lhe o.	{ Glielo, Gliene,	Gli lo.	} To him or her of it, } or it to him or } her.
Lha,	Lhe a.		Gliela,
Lhos,	Lhe os.	Glieli,	Gli li.	} To them of it, to him } or to her of them.
Lhas,	Lhe as. Lhes a.	Gliele,	Gli le.
Nolo,	Nos o.	{ Celo, Cene,	Ci lo.	} Us of it, or it to us.
Nola,	Nos a.		Cela,
Nolos,	Nos os.	Celi,	Ci li.	} Them to us.
Nolas,	Nos as.	Cele,	Ci la.
Volo,	Vos o.	{ Velo, Vene,	Vi lo.	} You of it, or it to you.
Vola,	Vos a.		Vela,
Volos,	Vos os.	Veli,	Vi li.	} You of them, or them } to you.
Volas,	Vos as.	Vele,	Vi le.

The following words are usually put down by grammarians as improper pronouns, partaking somewhat of the nature of a pronoun and an adjective.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Quienquiera, quie- nes quiera.	Quemquer.	Chiunque.	Whosoever.
Qualquiera, quales quiera.	Qualquer, quaes quer.	Qualsivoglia.	Whatsoever.
Cada.	Cada.	Ogni.	Each.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Cada uno, cada una.	Cada hum, cada huma.	Ciascuno, ciascuna.	Every one, each.
Alguno, alguna.	Algum, alguma.	Alcuno, alcuna.	} Some.
Algunos, algunas.	Alguns, algumas.	Alcuni, alcune.
Nadie.	Ninguem.	Nissuno.	Nobody.
Ninguno, ninguna.	Nenhum, nenhuma.	Veruno.	} No one.
Ningunos, ningunas.	Nenhum, nenhuma.	Veruna.

With some others: but as the propriety of such a classification may fairly be questioned, no further notice need be taken of them here.

THE VERBS.

The auxiliary verbs in Spanish and Portuguese are four, and in the Italian two, viz.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Haber.	Haver.	Avere.	} To have.
Tener.	Ter.	Tenere, not classed as an auxiliary verb.
Ser.	Ser.	Essere.	} To be.
Estar.	Estar.	Stare, not classed as an auxiliary.

The Spanish and Portuguese grammarians have usually classed the auxiliary verbs in the foregoing manner, although I think it is to be doubted whether tener in Spanish, haver in Portuguese, and estar in both languages, can properly be called auxiliaries. The Portuguese undoubtedly use ter as the auxiliary verb where the Spaniards use haber, and the Italians avere; but ter is also in Portuguese a verb active, having the same significations, which are many, as tener in Spanish and tenere in Italian. And in like manner estar in Spanish and Portuguese has the same significations as stare in Italian. Although the Italian grammarians do not class tenere and stare among their auxiliary verbs, yet, as they are evidently the same verbs as tener, ter, and estar, in Spanish and Portuguese, their conjugations are given with those of these Spanish and Portuguese auxiliaries, as the grammarians (improperly, I conceive, except ter;) call them. In general they may be rendered one for the other in translating from one language to the other, although in each language they have their peculiar significations, which can only be learned by studying its peculiar idioms: thus, ter, as has been observed before, is the auxiliary verb in the Portuguese, where the Spaniards and Italians use haber and avere; whilst ter retains, and is used in, most of the same significations as tener in the Spanish and tenere in the Italian.

There is an idiom in the use of the verb haber, haver, common to the Spanish and Portuguese languages: thus, they say in

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ENGLISH.
He de haber.	Hei de haver.	I must have.
Habia de haber.	Havia de haver.	I was to have.
Habré de haber.	Haverei de haver.	I shall be obliged to have.
&c.	&c.

And the Italians use the verb avere with the prepositions da and a, for the verb dovere; as Ho da fare, I ought to speak; Avendo a dire, Being to speak: in the sense of doendo dire. The Portuguese also have an idiom for expressing the future time by placing the auxiliary verb haver after the infinitive mood of another verb; as Dar vos hei, I will give you; Dar lhe hei, I will give to him, &c. : and also for the preterimperfect tense subjunctive mood ; as Dar lhe hia, I should give to him. Which modes of expressing seem to be only the unabbreviated old methods, which probably were also in use to express each tense of every verb, but which usage has altered into tenses with terminations ; for there can be but little doubt that darei and dar hei, daria and dar hia, having the same significations, are one and the same, the former being the abbreviations of the latter.

The CONJUGATION of the *simple Tenses of the Auxiliary Verb, in

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Haber.	Haver.	Avere.	To have.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Haber.	Haver.	Avere.	To have.
--------	--------	--------	----------

Participle.

Habido.	Havido.	Avuto.	Had.
---------	---------	--------	------

Gerund.

Habiendo.	Habendo.	Avendo.	Having.
-----------	----------	---------	---------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Yo he	Eu hey	Io ho	I have
tu has	tu has	tu hai	thou hast el ha	elle ha	egli ha	he hath or has nosotros hemos	nos havemos	noi abbiamo	we have or habemos	or hemos vosotros habeis	vos haveis or	voi avete	ye have heis
ellos han.	elles haõ.	eglino hanno.	they have.

* See Observations under the head of Compound Tenses, pag. 64.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
----------	-------------	----------	----------

Preterimperfect Tense.

Habia	Havia or hia	Avevo or aveva	I had habias	havia or hias	avevi	thou hadst habia	havia or hia	aveva	he had habíamos	haviamos or hiamos	avevamo	we had habíais	havieis or hieis	avevate	ye had habian.	haviaõ or hiaõ.	avevano.	they had.

Preterperfect Tense.

Hube	Houve	Ebbi	I had
hubiste	houveste	avesti	thou hadst hubo	houve	ebbe	he had hubimos	houvemos	avemmo	we had hubísteis	houvestes	avéste	ye had hubiéron.	houveraõ.	ebbero.	they had.

Future Tense.

Habré	Haverei	Avrò	I shall or will have habrás	haverás	avrai	thou, &c.
habrá	haverá	avrà	he, &c.
habrémos	haverémos	avremo	we, &c.
habréis	havereis	avrete	ye, &c.
habrán.	havéraõ.	avranno.	they, &c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Habe tu	Hajas tu	Abbi tu	Have thou haya el	haja elle	abbia egli	let him have hayamos nosotros	hajamos nos	abbiamo noi	let us have haced vosotros	havei vos	abbiate voi	have ye hayan ellos.	hajaõ elles.	abbiano eglino.	let them have.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Yo haya	Eu haja	Io abbia	I have or may have tu hayas	tu hajas	tu abbi, abbia	thou mayst have el haya	elle haja	egli abbia	he may have nosotros hayamos	nos hajamos	noi abbiamo	we may have vosotros hayais	vos hajais	voi abbiate	ye may have ellos hayan.	elles hajaõ.	eglino abbiano.	they may have.

SPANISH. PORTUGUESE. ITALIAN. ENGLISH.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Que	Que	Che	That
Hubiera	Houvera	Avessi	I had, or would, or hubiese	or houvesse		could, should, or might have
hubieras	houberas	avessi	thou, &c.
or hubieses	or houvesses
hubiera	houvera	avesse	he, &c.
or hubiese	or houvesse
hubiéramos	houveramos	avessimo	we, &c.
or hubiésemos	or houvessemos
hubiérais	houvereis	aveste	ye, &c.
or hubiéscis	or houvesseis
hubieran	houveraõ	avessero.	they, &c.
or hubiesen.	or houvessem.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Habria	Haveria	Avrei	I should, would, could, or might
			have.
habrias	haverias	avresti	thou, &c.
habria	haveria	avrebbe	he, &c.
habríamos	haveríamos	avremmo	we, &c.
habríaís	haverieís	avreste	ye, &c.
habrian.	haveriaõ.	avrebbero.	they, &c.

Future Tense.

Hubiere	Houver	[There is no future	I shall, will, or subjunctive in the	may have hubieres	houveres	Italian: the fu-	thou, &c.
hubiere	houver	ture indicative or	he, &c.
hubiéremos	houvermos	present subjunc-	we, &c.
hubiereís	houverdes	tive is used.]	ye, &c.
hubieren.	houver.		they, &c.

The CONJUGATION of the simple Tenses of the Auxiliary Verb, in

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Tener.	Ter.	Tenere.	To have.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Tener.	Ter.	Tenere.	To have.
--------	------	---------	----------

Participle.

Tenido.	Tido.	Tenuto.	Had.
---------	-------	---------	------

Gerund.

Teniendo.	Tendo.	Tenendo.	Having.
-----------	--------	----------	---------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Yo tengo	Eu tenho	Io tengo	I have tu tienes	tu tens	tu tieni	thou hast el tiene	elle tem	egli tiene	he has nosotros tenemos	nos temos	noi teniamo	we have vosotros tenéis	vos tendes	voi tenete	ye have ellos tienen.	elles tem.	eglino tengono.	they have.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Tenia	Tinha	Tenevo	I had
tenías	tinhas	tenevi	thou hadst tenia	tinha	teneva	he had teníamos	tinhamos	tenevamo	we had teníais	tinheis	tenevate	ye had tenían.	tinhaõ.	tenevano.	they had.

Preterperfect Tense.

Tuve	Tive	Tenni	I had
tuviste	tiveste	tenesti	thou hadst tuvo	teve	tenne	he had tuvimos	tivemos	tenemmo	we had tuvísteis	tivestes	teneste	ye had tuviéron.	tiveraõ.	tennero.	they had.

Future Tense.

Tendré	Terei	Terrò	I shall or will have.
tendrás	terás	terrai	thou, &c.
tendrá	terà	terrà	he, &c.
tendremos	teremos	terrèmo	we, &c.
tendréis	tereis	terrète	ye, &c.
tendrán.	teraõ.	terranno.	they, &c.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
IMPERATIVE MOOD.
Ten	Tem	Tieni	Have thou
tenga	tenha	tenga	let him have tengamos	tenhamos	teniamo	let us have tened	tende	tenete	have ye tengan.	tenhaõ.	tengano.	let them have.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Tenga	Tenha	Tenga	I may have
tengas	tenhas	tenga	thou, &c.
tenga	tenha	tenga	he, &c.
tengamos	tenhamos	teniamo	we, &c.
tengais	tenhais	teniate	ye, &c.
tengan.	tenhaõ.	tengano.	they, &c.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Tuviera	Tivera	Tenessi	I might, could,
or tuviese	or tivesse		would, or should,
			have
tuvieras	tiveras	tenessi	thou, &c.
or tuvieses	or tivesseis
tuviera	tivera	tenessi	he, &c.
or tuviese	or tivesse
tuviéramos	tiveramos	tenessimo	we, &c.
or tuviésemos	or tivessemos
tuviérais	tivereis	teneste	ye, &c.
or tuviéseis	or tivesseis
tuvieran	tiveraõ	tenessero.	they, &c.
or tuviesen.	or tivessem.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Tendria	Teria	Terrei	I should, would,
			could, or might,
			have.
tendrias	terias	terresti	thou, &c.
tendria	teria	terrebbe	he, &c.
tendríamos	teríamos	terremmo	we, &c.
tendríaís	terieís	terreste	ye, &c.
tendrian.	teriaõ.	terrebero.	they, &c.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Future Tense.
Tuviere	Tiver	_____	I may have.
tuvieres	tiveres	_____	thou, &c.
tuviere	tiver	_____	he, &c.
tuviéremos	tiverimos	_____	we, &c.
tuviéreis	tiverdes	_____	ye, &c.
tuvieren.	tiverem.	_____	they, &c.

The CONJUGATION of the simple Tenses of the Auxiliary Verb, in

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Ser.	Ser.	Essere.	To be.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Ser.	Ser.	Essere.	To be.
------	------	---------	--------

Participle.

Sido.	Sido.	Stato.	Been.
-------	-------	--------	-------

Gerund.

Siendo.	Sendo.	Essendo, Sendo.	Being.
---------	--------	-----------------	--------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Yo soy	Eu sou	Io sono	I am.
tu eres	tu es	tu sei	thou art
el es	elle he	egli è	he is nosotros somos	nos somos	noi siamo	we are vosotros sois	vos sois	voi siete, sete	ye are ellos son.	elles saõ.	eglino sono.	they are.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Era	Era	Ero	I was eras	eras	eri	thou wast
era	era	era	he was
éramos	eramos	eramo, eravamo	we were érais	ereis	erate, eravate	ye were eran.	eraõ.	erano.	they were.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Preterperfect Tense.
Fuí	Fui	Fui	I was fuiste	foste	fuste, fosti	thou wast
fué	foi	fu	he was fuimos	fomos	fummo	we were fuísteis	fostes	fuste, foste	ye were fuéron.	foraõ.	furono.	they were.

Future Tense.

Seré	Serei	Sarò	I shall or will be serás	seras	sarai	thou shalt or wilt be será	sera	sarà	he shall or will be serémos	seremos	saremo	we shall or will be seréis	seréis	sarete	ye shall or will be serán.	seraõ.	saranno.	they shall or will be.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Se	Se	Sii, sia	Be thou
sea	seja	sia	let him be seamos	sejamos	siamo	let us be sed	sede	siate	be ye
sean.	sejaõ.	siano, siino, sieno.	let them be.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Sea	Seja	Sia	I may be seas	sejas	sia	thou mayst be sea	seja	sia	he may be seamos	sejamos	siamo	we may be seais	sejais	siate	ye may be
sean.	sejaõ.	siauo, siino, sieno.	they may be.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Fuera or fuese	Fora or fosse	Fossi, fussi	I were, or might, could, would, or should be.
fueras	foras or fosses	fossi, fussi	thou, &c.
or fueses
fuera or fuese	fora or fosse	fosse, fusse	he, &c.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
fuéramos or fuésemos	foramos or fossemos	fossimo, fussimo	we, &c.
fuérais or fuéreis	foreis or fosseis	foste, fuste	ye, &c.
fuéran or fuésen.	foraō or fosse.	fossiero, fussero.	they, &c.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Seria	Seria	Sarei	I would, could, should, or might be serias	serias	saresti	thou, &c.
seria	seria	sarebbe	he, &c.
seríamos	seriamos	saremmo	we, &c.
seriais	serieis	sareste	ye, &c.
serian.	seriaō.	sarebbero, sarebbono.	they &c.

Future Tense.

Fuere	For	—————	I may be fueres	fores	—————	thou may be fuere	for	—————	he may be fuéremos	formos	—————	we may be fuéreis	fordes	—————	ye may be fuéren.	forem.	—————	they may be.

The Italians in all the compound tenses of Essere, and also of Stare, to be, do not use the auxiliary verb Avere, to have, but Essere, to be; as,

Sono stato, I have been, and not Ho stato; and so throughout.

The Spanish and Portuguese use Haber and Haver, to have (as the English); example,

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ENGLISH.
He sido or estado.	Hei sido or estado.	I have been, &c.

The CONJUGATION of the simple Tenses of the Auxiliary Verb, in

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Estar.	Estar.	Stare.	To be.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Estar.	Estar.	Stare.	To be.
--------	--------	--------	--------

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
----------	-------------	----------	----------

Participle.

Estado.	Estado.	Stato.	Been.
---------	---------	--------	-------

Gerund.

Estando.	Estando.	Stando.	Being.
----------	----------	---------	--------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Yo estoy	Eu estou	Io sto	I am
tu estas	tu estas	tu stai	thou art el esta	elle esta	egli sta	he is nosotros estamos	nos estamos	noi stiamo	we are vosotros estais	vos estais	voi state	ye are ellos estan.	elles estaõ.	eglino stanno.	they are.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Estaba	Estava	Stavo	I was
estabas	estavas	stavi	thou wast estaba	estava	stava	he was estábamos	estavamos	stavamo	we were estábais	estaveis	stavate	ye were estaban.	estavaõ.	stavano.	they were.

Preterperfect Tense.

Estuve	Estive	Stetti	I was estuviste	estiveste	stesti	thou wast estuvo	estevé	stette	he was estuvimos	estivemos	stemmo	we were estuvisteis	estivestes	steste	ye were estuvieron.	estiveraõ.	stettero.	they were.

Future Tense.

Estaré	Estarei	Starò	I shall or will be estarás	estaras	starai	thou, &c.
estará	estara	starà	he, &c.
estaremos	estaremos	staremo	we, &c.
estaréis	estareis	starete	ye, &c.
estaran.	estaraõ.	staranno,	they, &c.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
IMPERATIVE MOOD.
Esta	Esta	Sta	Be thou
este	esteja	stia	let him be estemos	estejamos	stiamo	let us be estad	estai	state	be ye esten.	estejaõ.	stiano, stano.	let them be.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Este	Esteja	Stia	I may be estes	estejas	stia	thou mayst be este	esteja	stia	he may be estemos	estejamos	stiamo	we may be esteis	estejais	stiate	ye may be esten.	estejaõ.	stiano, stiino.	they may be.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Estuviera or estuviere	Estivera or estivesse	Stessi	I were, or I might, could, would, or should be estuvieras or estuviesses	estiveras or estivesseis	stessi	thou, &c.
estuviera or estuviere	estivera or estivesse	stesse	he, &c.
estuviéramos or estuviésemos	estiveramos or estivessemos	stessimo	we, &c.
estuviérais or estuviéreis	estiveréis or estivesseis	steste	ye, &c.
estuvieran or estuviesen.	estiveraõ or estivessem.	stessero.	they, &c.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Estaria	Estaria	Starei	I might, could, would, or should be estarias	estarias	staresti	thou, &c.
estaria	estaria	starebbe	he, &c.
estaríamos	estaríamos	staremmo	we, &c.
estaríais	estaríais	stareste	ye, &c.
estarian.	estariaõ.	starebbero.	they, &c.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Future Tense.
Estuviere	Estiver	————	I may be estuvieres	estiveres	————	thou may be estuviere	estiver	————	he may be estuviéremos	estivermos	-----	we may be estuviéreis	estiverdes	————	ye may be estuvieren.	estiverem.	————	they may be.

The difference between Ser and Estar in the Spanish and Portuguese, and Essere and Stare in the Italian, is considerable. The former, Ser and Essere, have been called the substantive verbs, and are used in speaking of the proper essence, quality or quantity of any thing. The latter, Estar and Stare, are used in speaking of any adventitious quality, or something not habitual: thus, speaking of a man's disposition or habitual goodness, you say,

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Es bueno.	Hé bom.	E' buono.	He is good.
Speaking of his health, you would say
Està bueno.	Està bém.	Sta bene.	He is well.

Ser and Essere signify to be, to exist; but Estar and Stare signify to be with respect to situation or circumstances; and besides this signification they have many others. They are used also (as in the English the verb To be is) with the gerund to denote the present and other tenses of other verbs; as in

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Estoy escribiendo.	Estou escrevendo.	Sto scrivendo.	I am writing.
Estaba escribiendo.	Estava escrevendo.	Stava scrivendo.	He was writing. &c.

The Conjugation of the Regular Verbs.

There are three conjugations of regular verbs in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages.

The first conjugation in its infinitive mood ends in

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.
ar,	ar,	are,
as
Amar.	Amar.	Amare.	To love.

The second in

er,	er,	ere,
as
Vender.	Vender.	Vendere.	To sell.

The third in

ir,	ir,	ire,
as
Abrir.	Abrir.	Aprire.	To open.

These verbs, that is all the regular verbs, are conjugated by changing the terminations of the infinitive moods in

	SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.
Conjugation as by number.	{ 1. ar,	ar,	are,
	{ 2. er,	er,	ere,
	{ 3. ir,	ir,	ire,

into the following; viz. for

The Participle.*

1.	ado.	ado.	ato.
2. }	ido.	ido.	{ uto.
3. }

The Gerund.

1.	ando.	ando.	ando.
2. }	iendo.	{ endo.	endo.
3. }

* The participles are declined, in gender and number, as adjectives when the construction of the sentence requires it.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

SPANISH.

Conjg. as by number.	Sing. 1. o, 2. a, 3. e;	Plur. 2. ais, eis, is;	3. an. en.
	{ amos, emos, } { imos, } { emos, } { imos, }	{ ais, eis, } { imos, } { em.	{ an. en.

1. aba, 2. } 3. }	ias, ia;	ábamos, ábais, aban. famos, fais, fan.
-------------------------	----------	---

1. é, 2. } 3. }	aste, ó; iste, ió;	amos, ásteis, áron. imos, ísteis, íron.
-----------------------	-----------------------	--

1. aré, 2. } 3. }	arás, ará; erés, erá; irás, irá;	aremos, aréis, arán. eremos, eréis, erán. iremos, iréis, irán.
-------------------------	--	--

1. — 2. — 3. —	a, e, e,	e; a; a;	amos, emos, amos,	ai, ei, i,	em. am. an.
----------------------	----------------	----------------	-------------------------	------------------	-------------------

PORTUGUESE.

Sing. 1. o, 2. a, 3. e;	Plur. 2. ais, eis, em.	3. aõ. em.
{ amos, } { imos, }	{ ais, eis, }	{ em.

Preterimperfect Tense.

ava, ia,	avas, avá; ias, ia;	avamos, aveis, avãõ. íamos, íeis, ivõ.
-------------	------------------------	---

Preterperfect Tense.

ei, i, i,	aste, ou; este, eo; iste, io;	astes, avãõ. estes, eraõ. ístes, iraõ.
-----------------	-------------------------------------	--

Future Tense.

arei, erei, ira,	aras, ará; eras, erá; iras, irá;	aremos, aréis, arãõ. eremos, eréis, eraõ. iremos, iréis, iraõ.
------------------------	--	--

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

— — —	a, e, e,	e; a; a;	amos, emos, amos,	ai, ei, i,	em. am. aõ.
-------------	----------------	----------------	-------------------------	------------------	-------------------

ITALIAN.

Sing. 2. l, 3. i;	1. o, 3. a; e;	Plur. 2. ate, ete, ite;	1. iamò, { iamò, iamò,	3. ano, ono, ono.
--------------------------------	----------------------	---	------------------------------	-------------------------

avo, evo, ivo,	avi, evi, ivi,	avate, evate, ivate,	avamo, evamo, ivamo,
----------------------	-------------------	-------------------------	-------------------------

ai, ei, etti, j,	a-te, este, este, ette, iste,	amò, emò, emò, emò, imò, imò,	aròno, eròno, etterò, ironò,
---------------------------	-------------------------------------	-------------------------------------	---------------------------------

erò, irò,	erai, irai,	eremo, iremo, eremo, irano,
--------------	-------------	--------------------------------

— — —	a, i, a;	iamò, ate, iamò, ete, iamò, ite,	ino, ano, ano.
-------------	----------------	--	----------------------

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Comp. as by numb.

SPANISH.

Sing.		Plur.
1. per. 2.	3.	1.	2.
e,	es,	e,	éis,
a,	as,	a,	aís,
a,	as,	a,	án,

PORTUGUESE.

Sing.		Plur.
1.	2.	1.	2.
e,	es,	eis,	es.
a,	as,	aís,	as.

ITALIAN.

Sing.		Plur.
1.	2.	1.	2.
i,	i,	iano,	iate,
a,	a,	iano,	iate,

Preterimperfect Tense.

1. { ara, aras, ara; áramos, aráis, aran. and ase, ases, ase; ásemos, áseis, asen.	2. { iera, ieras, iera; íramos, íerais, ieran. and iesse, iesses, iesse; íssemos, íseis, iesen.
--	---

ara, aras, ara; aramos, aréis, arao.	and asse, asses, asse; assemos, asseis, assem.	era, eras, era; eramós, eréis, erao.	and essee, essee; essemos, esseis, essem.
issi, issi, isse; issemos, isseis, issem.	ere, eras, era; eramos, eréis, erao.	essi, essi, esse; essemos, esseis, essem.	issi, issi, isse; issemos, isseis, issem.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

1. aria, arias, aria; ariamos, ariáis, arian.	2. eria, erias, eria; eríamos, eríais, erian.	3. iria, irias, iria; iríamos, iríais, irian.
---	---	---

aria, arias, aria; ariamos, ariéis, ariao.	eria, erias, eria; eríamos, eréis, eriao.	iria, irias, iria; iríamos, iréis, iriao.
--	---	---

Future Tense.

1. are, ares, are; áremos, áreis, aren.	2. iere, ieres, iere; íremos, íreis, ieren.	3. {
---	---	------

ar, ares, ar; armos, ardes, arem.	er, eres, er; ermos, erdes, erem.	ir, irs, ir; irmos, irdes, irem.
-----------------------------------	-----------------------------------	----------------------------------

[There is no future tense subjunctive mood in Italian.]

The FIRST CONJUGATION, Regular Verbs, simple Tenses only, in

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Ar.	Ar.	Are.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Amar.	Amar.	Amare.	To love.
-------	-------	--------	----------

Participle.

Amado.	Amado.	Amato.	Loved.
--------	--------	--------	--------

Gerund.

Amando.	Amando.	Amando.	Loving.
---------	---------	---------	---------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Amo	Amo	Amo	I love
amas	amas	ami	thou lovest
ama	ama	ama	he loves amamos	amamos	amiamo	we love
amais	amais	amate	ye love
aman.	amaõ.	amano.	they love.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Amaba	Amava	Amavo et amava	I loved or was loving amabas	amavas	amavi	thou lovedst
amaba	amava	amava	he loved amábamos	amavamos	amavamo	we loved amábais	amavais	amavate	ye loved amaban.	amavaõ.	amavano.	they loved.

Preterperfect Tense.

Amé	Amei	Amai	I loved
amaste	amaste	amasti	thou lovedst
amó	amou	amò	he loved amamos	amamos	amammo	we loved amásteis	amastes	amaste	ye loved amáron.	amaraõ.	amarono.	they loved.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Future Tense.
Amaré	Amarci	Amerò	I shall or will love amarás	amaras	amerai	thou shalt, &c.
amará	amara	amerà	he, &c.
amarémos	amaremos	ameremo	we, &c.
amareis	amareis	amerete	ye, &c.
amarán.	amaraõ.	ameranno.	they, &c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Ama	Ama	Ama	Love thou
ame	ame	ami	let him love
amemos	amemos	amiamo	let us love
amad	amai	amate	love ye
amen.	amem.	amino.	let them love.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Ame	Ame	Ami	I may love or I love.
ames	ames	ami	thou mayst, &c.
ame	ame	ami	he may, &c.
amemos.	amemos	amiamo	we, &c.
ameis	ameis	amiate	ye, &c.
amen.	amem.	amino.	they, &c.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Amara or amase	Amara or amasse	Amassi	I might, could, would, or should love.
amaras or amases	amaras or amasses	amassi	thou mightest, &c.
amara or amase	amara or amasse	amasse	he, &c.
amáramos or amásemos	amaramos or amassemos	amassimo	we, &c.
amárais or amárcis	amareis or amasseis	amaste	ye, &c.
amaran or amasen.	amaraõ or amassem.	amassero.	they, &c.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Preterimperfect conditional Tense.
Amaría	Amaria	Amerci	I should, would, could, or might love.
amarías	amarias	ameresti	thou, &c.
amaría	amaria	amerèbbe	he, &c.
amaríamos	amariamos	ameremmo	we, &c.
amaríais	amariéis	amereste	ye, &c.
amarían.	amariaõ.	amerebbero.	they, &c.

Future Tense.

Amare	Amar	————	I may or shall love.
amarés	amares	————	thou, &c.
amare	amar	————	he, &c.
amaremos	amaremos	————	we, &c.
amáreis	amardes	————	ye, &c.
amaren.	amarem.	————	they, &c.

The SECOND CONJUGATION, Regular Verbs, simple Tenses only, in

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Er,	Er.	Ere.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Vender.	Vender.	Vendere.	To sell.
---------	---------	----------	----------

Participle.

Vendido.	Vendido.	Venduto.	Sold.
----------	----------	----------	-------

Gerund.

Vendiendo.	Vendendo.	Vendendo.	Selling.
------------	-----------	-----------	----------

INDICATIVE MOOD.Present Tense.

Vendo	Vendo	Vendo	I sell.
vendes	vendes	vendi	thou sellest
vende	vende	vende	he sells

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
vendemos	vendemos	vendiamo	we sell
vendeis	vendeis	vendete	ye sell
venden.	vendem.	vendono.	they sell.

Præterimperfect Tense.

Vendia	Vendia	Vendevò	I sold, or was selling vendias	vendias	vendevi	thou soldest
vendia	vendia	vendeva	he sold vendíamos	vendíamos	vendevamo	we sold vendiais	vendieis	vendevate	ye sold vendian.	vendiaõ.	vendevano.	they sold.

Præterperfect Tense.

Vendí	Vendi	Vendei, vendetti	I sold
vendiste	vendeste	vendesti	thou soldest
vendíó	vendeo	vendè, vendette	he sold vendimos	vendemos	vendemmo	we sold vendisteis	vendestes	vendeste	ye sold vendieron.	venderaõ.	venderono, vendettero.	they sold.

Future Tense.

Venderé	Venderei	Venderò	I shall or will sell
venderás	venderas	venderai	thou shalt or wilt, &c.
venderá	vendera	venderà	he, &c.
venderémos	venderemos	venderemo	we, &c.
venderéis	venderéis	venderete	ye, &c.
venderán.	venderaõ.	venderanno.	they, &c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Vende	Vende	Vendi	Sell thou
venda	venda	venda	let him sell vendamos	vendamos	vendiamo	let us sell vended	vendei	vendete	sell ye
vendan.	vendaõ.	vendamo.	let them sell.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
----------	-------------	----------	----------

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Venda	Venda	Venda	I may sell
vendas	vendas	venda	thou mayst sell
venda	venda	venda	he may sell vendamos	vendamos	vendiamo	we may sell vendais	vendais	vendiate	ye may sell
vendan.	vendaõ.	vendano.	they may sell.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Vendiera or vendiese	Vendera or vendesse	Vendessi	I might, could, would, or should sell.
vendieras or vendieses	venderas or vendesses	vendessi	thou, &c.
vendiera or vendiese	vendera or vendesse	vendesse	he, &c.
vendiéramos or vendiésemos	venderamos or vendessemos	vendessimo	we, &c.
vendiérais or vendiéseis	venderéis or vendesseis	vendeste	ye, &c.
vendieran or vendiesen.	venderaõ or vendessem.	vendessero	they, &c.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Venderia	Venderia	Venderei	I should, would, could, or might sell venderias	venderias	venderesti	thou, &c.
venderia	venderia	venderebbe	he, &c.
venderíamos,	venderíamos	venderemmo	we, &c.
venderiais	venderiais	vendereste	ye, &c.
venderian.	venderiaõ.	venderebbero or venderebbero.	they, &c.

Future Tense.

Vendiere	Vender	—————	I may or shall sell
vendieres	venderes	—————	thou, &c.
vendiere	vender	—————	he &c.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
vendierelos	vendermos	————	we may or shall sell vendiéreis	venderdes	————	ye, &c.
vendieren.	venderem.	————	they, &c.

The THIRD CONJUGATION, Regular Verbs, simple Tenses only, in

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Ir.	Ir.	Ire.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Abrir.	Abrir.	Aprire.	To open.
--------	--------	---------	----------

Participle.

Abierto*.	Abrido.	Aperto †.	Opened.
-----------	---------	-----------	---------

Gerund.

Abriendo.	Abrindo.	Aprendo.	Opening.
-----------	----------	----------	----------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Abro	Abro	Apro	I open
abres	abres	apri	thou openest
abre	abre	apre	he opens abrimos	abrimos	apriamo	we open abris	abreis	aprite	ye open
abren.	abren.	aprono.	they open.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Abria	Abria	Aprivo	I opened, or was opening
abrias	abrias	aprivi	thou openedst
abria	abria	apriva	he opened

* Irregular in the participle; abrido, the regular one, not being used.

+ Irregular in the participle; aprito, the regular one, not being in use.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
abríamos	abrimos	aprivamo	we opened abriais	abrieis	aprivato	ye opened abrian.	abriaõ	aprivano	they opened.

Preterperfect Tense.

Abri	Abri	Aprj	I opened
abriste	abriste	apristi	thou openedst
abrió	abrió	apri	he opened abrimos	abrimos	aprimmo	we opened abristeis	abristes	apriste	ye opened abriéron.	abrirãõ.	aprirono.	they opened.

Future Tense.

Abriré	Abrirei	Aprirò	I shall or will open
abrirás	abriras	aprirai	thou, &c.
abrirá	abrirá	aprirà	he, &c.
abrirémos	abriremos	apriremo	we, &c.
abriréis	abriereis	aprirete	ye, &c.
abrirán.	abrirãõ.	apriranno	they, &c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Abre	Abre	Apri	Open thou
abra	abra	apra	let him open abramos	abramos	apriamo	let us open abrid	abri	aprite	open ye.
abran.	abraõ.	aprano.	let them open.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Abra	Abra	Apra	I may open
abras	abras	apra	thou mayst open abra	abra	apra	he may open abramos	abramos	apriamo	we may open abrais	abrais	apriate	ye may open abran.	abraõ.	aprano.	they may open.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Preterimperfect Tense.
Abriera or abriese	Abrira or abrisse	Aprissi	I could, might, would, or should open abriéras or abrieses	abriras or abrisse	aprisi	thou, &c.
abriera or abriese	abrira or abrisse	aprisse	he, &c.
abriéramos or abriésemos	abriramos or abrissemos	aprisimo	we, &c.
abriérais or abriéseis	abrirais or abrisseis	apriste	ye, &c.
abriieran or abriese.	abriraō or abrissem.	aprissero.	they, &c.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Abriria	Abriria	Aprirei	I should, would, could, or might open abririas	abririas	apriresti	thou, &c.
abriria	abriria	aprirebbe	he, &c.
abriéramos	abririamos	apriremmo	we, &c.
abriérais	abriricis	aprireste	ye, &c.
abririan.	abririaō.	aprirebbero.	they, &c.

Future Tense.

Abriere	Abrir	—————	I may or shall open
abrieres	abrirés	—————	thou, &c.
abriere	abrir	—————	he, &c.
abriéremos	abririmos	—————	we, &c.
abriéreis	abrirides	—————	ye, &c.
abrieren.	abrirém.	—————	they, &c.

Compound Tenses.

In the conjugations given of the regular and auxiliary verbs, the simple tenses only have been set down: the three languages, however, like the English, have what are styled in grammars, Compound Tenses, composed of the participle and the auxiliary verb To have; for which latter the Spaniards make use of Haber, the Italians of Avere, but the Portuguese use Ter. The conjugation of the first person of every compound tense of one verb in the first conjugation will be a sufficient example, as the participle of any other verb placed after the different tenses of the auxiliary verbs Haber, Ter, Avere, will form the compound tenses of that verb, in the same manner as its compound tenses are formed in English by placing the participle after the different tenses of the auxiliary verb To have.

COMPOUND TENSES of the Verb

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Amar.	Amar.	Amare.	To love.

Compound, or Past, Participle.

Haber amado. Ter amado. Avere amato. To have loved.

Compound of the Gerund.

Habiendo amado. Tendo amado. Avendo amato. Having loved.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Compound of the Present Tense.

Yo he amado. Eu tenho amado. Io ho amato. I have loved.

Compound of the Past Tense.

Yo habia amado. Eu tinha amado. Io avevo amato. I had loved.

Compound of the Future Tense.

Yo habré amado. Eu terei amado. Io avrò amato. I shall have loved.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Compound of the Present Tense.

Que	Que	Che	That
Yo haya amado.	Eu tenha amado.	Io abbia amato.	I may have loved.

Compound of the Preterimperfect Tense.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Si	Se	Se	If
Yo hubiera or hubiese amado.	Eu tivera or tivesse amado.	Io avessi amato.	I should, would, could, or might have loved.

Compound of the Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Yo habria amado.	Eu teria amado.	Io avrei amato.	I should, would, could, or might, have loved.
------------------	-----------------	-----------------	--

Compound of the Future Tense.

Si	Se	—————	If
Yo hubiere amado.	Eu tiver amado.	—————	I shall have loved.

VERBS PASSIVE.

The Passive signification of the verb may be rendered, as in the English, by conjugating the participle with the auxiliary verb, in

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Ser,	Ser,	Essere,	To be;
as,

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Ser amado.	Ser amado.	Essere amato.	To be loved.
------------	------------	---------------	--------------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Yo soy amado	Eu sou amado	Io sono amato	I am loved tu eres amado	tu es amado	tu sei amato	thou art loved el es amado	elle he amado	egli è amato	he is loved nosotros somos amados	nos somos amados	noi siamo amati	we are loved vosotros sois amados	vos sois amados	voi siete amati	ye are loved ellos son amados.	elles são amados.	eglino sono amati.	they are loved.

And in like manner through all the other moods and tenses: only it must be observed that the participle agrees in gender and number with the nominative case. The above example is for the masculine gender. If feminine, the first persons would be

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Yo soy amada	Eu sou amada	Io sono amata	I am loved
nosotros somos amadas.	nos somos amadas.	noi siamo amate.	we are loved.

And in like manner for the other persons, moods, and tenses, when the nominative case is of the feminine gender.

Besides the foregoing mood, which is similar to the English method of expressing the passive voice, there is an idiom in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages, by which the passive signification, in the infinitive mood and in the third persons of the other moods, is given by means of the pronoun, in

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.
Se,	Se,	Si,

as for example;

Spanish.—La gramatica se estudia para hablar con propiedad, pero { se deve añadir } la leccion de los autores classicos. { or deve añadirse }

Portuguese.—A grammatica se estuda para fallar com propriedade, mais { se deve ajuntar } a leitura dos autores classicos. { or deve ajuntarse }

Italian.—La grammatica si studia per parlare col proprietà, ma { si deve aggiungere } la lettura degli autori classici. { or deve aggiungersi }

English.—Grammar is studied in order to speak with propriety, but reading of the classic authors ought to be added.

See also the Observations on the Impersonal Verbs for this idiom.

THE IRREGULAR VERBS.

It is impossible to give in parallel columns, examples of all the Irregular Verbs of each language, the deviations from the regular conjugations being different in kind, and which cannot be reduced to rules that will apply equally to all three languages.

As a general rule it is to be observed, that in the Spanish, all verbs ending in car, cer, cir; gar, ger, gir; guir and quir;—those in the Portuguese ending in car, gar, and gir;—and those in the Italian terminating in care and gare, differ from the regular conjugations in those tenses, where the vowel a of the root becomes e or i, and where the vowels e and i of the root become a or o; but the difference can hardly be called an irregularity, as it is made to preserve throughout the tenses the soft or the hard pronunciation of the infinitive: thus, In the Spanish, verbs in car change the c into qu, in those tenses where the c would otherwise be followed by an e: verbs in cer, cir, change the c into z, when a or o would otherwise follow c, except those in acer, ecer, and ocer, which take the z before the c in such tenses. The terminations in gar place an u between the g and e: in ger, gir, the g becomes a j in all tenses where a or o would follow the g. Verbs in quir lose the u before a or o, and verbs in quir change the qu to a c before a and o.

In the Portuguese, the verbs in car change the c into qu before e: in gar they take u before e: and in ger and gir, the g becomes a j before a and o.

In the Italian, verbs in care and gare take an h after the c and g in all the tenses where in the regular verbs these letters would otherwise be followed by e and i.

Examples:

Spanish.—Pecar, peque; tener, tenzo; uncir, unzo; pagar, pague; coger, cojo, coja; fingir, finjo, finja; seguir, sigo, siga; delinquir, delinco, delinca:—and not pece; tenco; unco; page; cogo, coga; fingo, finga; signo, signa; delinquo, delinqua.

Portuguese.—Peccar, pequei, peque; pagar, paguci, pague; affligir, afflijo, afflija:—and not pagei, page; affligo, affliga.

Italian.—Peccare, peccii, pecciamo; pagare, paghi, paghiamo:—and not pecci, pecciamo; pagi, pagiamo.

To one who is at all acquainted with the different pronunciations of these languages, the reason of the foregoing changes will be obvious, and his ear will readily enable him to retain the rule.

It may also be observed that, from custom, the i in verbs in the Spanish ending in aer, eer, oir, uir, when these two vowels are two syllables, is written y, in the gerund, the preterperfect tense and its dependencies; as caër, cayendo, cayò, cayera, cayese, cayere, &c.

Irregular Verbs of the First Conjugation.

In the Spanish language there are many verbs whose irregularity does not consist in the difference of termination, but in the change or augmentation of some other of its radical letters: thus, Acertar, To hit the mark, has an i before the e in the three present tenses, excepting in the first and second persons plural; as,

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Acierto, aciertas, acierta; acertamos, acertais, aciertan.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Acierta, acierte; acertamos, acertad, aciertan,

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Acierte, aciertes, acierte; acertemos, acerteis, acierten.

It is regular in all its other tenses. In a similar way, Acostar, To lie down, changes the o of the second syllable of the infinitive into ue, in the same moods and tenses; as,

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Acuesto, acuestas, acuesta; acostamos, acostais, acuestan.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Acuesta, acueste; acostemos, acostad, acuesten.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Acueste, acuestes, acueste; acostemos, acosteis, acuesten,

This irregularity appears to have arisen from the peculiar kind of pronunciation which various circumstances have given to the Spanish, differing from the Portuguese and Italian: almost all verbs whose penultimate syllable is formed by the vowels e or o have this irregularity, some few excepted; as, Aborda, abortar, acedar, acendar, acechar, acomodar, adelentar, adorar, afrentar, alexar, alternar, amedrentar, aperejar, apelar, aprocechar, arrogarse, arrollar, asentar, to note, asentar, to place, being irregular, asestar, asemejar, atobar, atropnar, atropar, celar, pesear, professar, atestar, to testify, atestar, to stuff, being irregular, intentar, arrogar, derrogar, interrogar, prorogar, subrogar, innocar, destronar, and entronar.—Jugar, to play, likewise changes the u into ue, in the same tenses and persons; and also, ending in gar, takes the u before the e in those tenses where otherwise the e would immediately follow the g of the root; as,

INDICATIVE MOOD.

. Present Tense.

Juego, juegas, juega; jugamos, jugais, juegan.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Juega, juegue; juguemos, jugad, jueguen.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Juegue, juegues, juegue; juguemos, juguéis, jueguen.

Dar, To give, is irregular in some of its terminations, and this verb is also irregular in the Portuguese and Italian. The following are the tenses in which it deviates from the regular conjugation.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Dar.	Dar.	Dare.	To give.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Yo doy	Eu dou	Io do, reg.	I give tu das, reg.	tu das, reg.	tu dai.	thou givest.
&c.	&c.	&c.

The other persons of this tense are regular.

Preterperfect Tense.

Dí	Dei, reg.	Diedi or detti	I gave diste	deste	desti	thou gavest
dió	deu	diede, diè, or dette,	he gave dimos	demos	demmo	we gave dísteis	destes	deste	ye gave diéron.	deraõ.	diedero or det- tero.	they gave.

Future Tense.

Daré, reg.	Darei, reg.	Darò.	I shall give.
&c. reg.	&c. reg.	&c. irreg.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Regular.	Regular.	Da, reg.	Give thou dia	let him give diamo, reg.	let us give date, reg.	give ye diano.	let them give.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Regular.	Regular.	Che dia	That I may give dia	thou mayst give dia	he may give
		diamo, reg.	we may give diate, reg.	ye may give diano or dienno.	they may give.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Preterimperfect Tense.
Diera or diese	Dera or desse	Dessi	I might, &c. give dieras or dieses	deras or desses	dessi	thou, &c.
diera or diese	dera or desse	desse	he, &c.
diéramos or diésemos	deramos or dessemos	dessimo	we, &c.
diérais or diéseis	dereis or desseis	deste	ye, &c.
dieran or diesen.	deraõ or dessem.	dessero.	they, &c.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Regular.	Regular.
		Darei	I should give daresti	thou should give darebbe	he should give daremmo	we should give dareste	ye should give darebbero.	they should give.

Future Tense.

Diere	Der	—————	I shall or may give dieres	deres	—————	thou, &c.
diere	der	—————	he, &c.
diéremos	dermos	—————	we, &c.
diéreis	derdes	—————	ye, &c.
dieren.	derem.	—————	they, &c.

The persons and tenses of the foregoing verb not here set down are regular.

Andar, To go, is irregular in the Spanish, and also in the Italian, in the following moods and tenses.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

SPANISH.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Andar.	Andare.	To go.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Regular.
Vado or vo		I go
vai		thou goest
va		he goes
andiamo, reg.		we go
andate, reg.		ye go
vanno.		they go.

SPANISH.

ITALIAN.

ENGLISH.

Preterperfect Tense.

Anduvé
anduviste anduvó anduvimos anduvísteis anduviéron.

Regular.

I went thou wentest he went we went ye went they went.

Future Tense.Regular.

Andrò andrai andrà andremo andrete andranno.

I shall or will go thou wilt go he will go we shall go ye will go they will go.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Regular.

Va vada
andiamo, reg.
andate, reg.
vadano or vadino.

Go
let him go let us go go ye let them go.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.Regular.

Vada or vadi
vada or vadi
vada or vadi
andiamo, reg.
andiate, reg.
vadino or vadano.

I may go thou mayst go he may go we may go ye may go they may go.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Anduviera or anduviese
anduvieras or anduvieses
anduviera or anduviese
anduviéramos or anduviésemos anduviérais or anduviéseis anduvieran or anduviesen.

Regular.

I might, could, &c. go thou, &c.
he, &c.
we, &c.
ye, &c.
they, &c.

SPANISH.

ITALIAN.

ENGLISH.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Regular.	Andrei	I should, &c. go.
	andresti	thou, &c.
	andrebbe	he, &c.
	andremmo	we, &c.
	andreste	ye, &c.
	andrebbero.	they, &c.

Future Tense.

Anduviere	—————	I may or shall go.
anduvieres	—————	thou, &c.
anduviere	—————	he, &c.
anduviéremos	—————	we, &c.
anduviéreis	—————	ye, &c.
anduvieren.	—————	they, &c.

N.B. In the Italian the compound tenses are formed by the auxiliary verb Essere, To be; and not by Avere, To have; as Io sono andato, I have gone; and so on throughout.

There is (if we except Estar, To be,) but one irregular verb in the Portuguese language, of the first conjugation, which is Dar, To give; whose conjugation has been just given with that of the Spanish verb Dar. The conjugation of Estar has already been given at length in the Auxiliary Verbs, and need not therefore be repeated here.

In the Italian there are but four irregular verbs in the first conjugation; viz. Andare, Dare, Stare, and Fare. The irregular tenses of the two first have just been given with the Spanish verbs Andar and Dar; and Stare has been conjugated at length in the Auxiliary Verbs.—Fare was formerly Facere, and consequently of the second conjugation, of which several of its tenses retain the regular terminations. Its conjugation is as follows :

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Fare. To do.

Gerund.

(Regular according to the Second Conjugation.)

Facendo. Doing.

Participle.

Fatto. Done.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Fo, fai, fa; facciamo, fate, fanno. I do, &c.

Preterimperfect Tense.

(Regular according to the Second Conjugation.)

Facevo, facevi, faceva; facevamo, facevate, facevano. I did, &c.

Preterperfect Tense.

Feci, facesti, fece; facemmo, faceste, fecero. I did, &c.

Future Tense.

Farò, farai, farà; faremo, farete, faranno. I shall do, &c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

— Fa, faccia; facciamo, fate, facciano. Do, &c.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Che Faccia, faccia, faccia; facciamo, facciate, facciano. That I may do, &c.

Preterimperfect Tense.

(Regular according to the Second Conjugation.)

Facessi, facessi, facesse; facessimo, faceste, facessero. I should do, &c.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Farei, faresti, farebbe; faremmo, fareste, farebbero. I would do, &c.

Irregular Verbs of the Second Conjugation.

The irregular verbs in this conjugation are numerous, especially in the Italian language.

In the Spanish, there are several which deviate from the general rule laid down for irregular verbs in cer, of changing the c into z before o and a, as all verbs in acer, ecer, and ocer, take a z before the radical c of the infinitive in those tenses where the c is followed by an a or o, except the verbs Hacer and Cocer: ex. gr. Nacer, nazco, nazca, and not nazo, naza, nor naco, naca.

There are several verbs whose penultimate syllables are formed with the vowels e or o, which have the irregularities that similar verbs of the first conjugation have, of taking an i before the e and changing the o into ue, in the three present tenses, excepting in the first and second persons plural of those tenses:—they are the following,

Ascender, atender, cerner, condescender, contender, defender, desatender, descender, encender, entender, extender, peder, pender, perder, tender, transcender, verter, and their compounds, except pretender and ofender.

Absolver, participle absuelto; cocer, doler, llover, moler, morder, mover, soler, solver, participle suelto; torcer, volver, participle vuelto, and their compounds.

The other irregular Spanish verbs of this conjugation are the following: the Portuguese and Italian verbs are also given at the same time, where they are evidently from the same stock.

Conjugation* of

SPANISH. PORTUGUESE. ITALIAN. ENGLISH.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Poder. Poder. Potere. To be able.

Gerund.

Pudiendo. Regular. Regular. Being able.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Puedo	Posso	Posso	I can
puedes	regular.	puoi	thou canst puede		puo	he can podemos, reg.		possiamo	we can podeis, reg.		potete	ye can pueden.		possono.	they can.

Preterperfect Tense.

Pudé	Pude	Regular.	I could podiste	podeste		thou couldst podó	pude		he could podimos	podemos		we could podísteis	podestes		ye could podieron.	poderaõ.		they could.

Future Tense.

Podré	Regular.	Potrò	I shall be able podrás		potrai	thou wilt be able podrá		potrà	he will be able podrémos		potremo	we shall be able podréis		potrete	ye will be able podrán.		potranno.	they will be able.

* The irregular tenses only are set down in all the following conjugations, it being unnecessary to give at length the tenses which follow the rule for the regular verbs. The verbs therefore are not to be considered as defective because the regular tenses are omitted. Where the verb is defective, notice is taken of it in the conjugation.

SPANISH.

PORTUGUESE. ITALIAN.

ENGLISH.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Pueda	Possa	Possa	I may be able
puedas	possas	possa	thou, &c.
pueda	possa	possa	he, &c.
podamos, reg.	possamos	possiamo	we, &c.
podais, reg.	possais	possiate	ye, &c.
puedan.	possaõ.	possano.	they, &c.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Pudiera	Pudera	Regular.	I might, &c. be or pudiese	or pudesse		able pudieras	puderas		thou, &c.
or pudieses	or pudieses
pudiera	pudera		he, &c.
or pudiese	or pudesse
pudiéramos	puderamos		we, &c.
or pudiésemos	or pudiessemos
pudiérais	pudereis		ye, &c.
or pudiéseis	or pudieseis
pudieran	puderaõ		they, &c.
or pudiesen.	or pudiessem.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Podria	Regular.	Potrei	I shall or may be able
podrias		potresti	thou, &c.
podria		potrebbe	he, &c.
podríamos		potremmo	we, &c.
podríais		potreste	ye, &c.
podrian.		potrebbero.	they, &c.

Future Tense.

Pudiere	Puder	—————	I shall or may be able
pudieres	puderes	—————	thou, &c.
pudiere	puder	—————	he, &c.
pudiéremos	pudermos	—————	we, &c.
pudiéreis	puderdes	—————	ye, &c.
pudieren.	puderem.	—————	they, &c.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
----------	-------------	----------	----------

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Saber.	Saber.	Sapere.	To know.
--------	--------	---------	----------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Se	Sei	So	I know
sabes, reg.	sabes, reg.	sai	thou knowest
sabe, reg.	sabe, reg.	sa	he knows sabemos, reg.	sabemos, reg.	sappiamo, reg.	we know sabeis, reg.	sabeis, reg.	sapete, reg.	ye know saben, reg.	sabem, reg.	sanno.	they know.

Preterperfect Tense.

Supé	Soube	Seppi	I knew
supiste	soubeste	sapesti, reg.	thou knewest
supó	soube	seppe	he knew supimos	soubemos	sapemmo, reg.	we knew supísteis	soubestes	sapeste, reg.	ye knew sUPIéron.	souberaõ.	seppero.	they knew

Future Tense.

Sabré	Regular.	Saprò	I shall know
sabrás		saprai	thou wilt know
sabrá		saprà	he will know
sabrémos		sapremo	we will know
sabréis		saprete	ye will know
sabrán.		sapranno.	they will know

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Sabe, reg.	Sabe, reg.	Sappi	Know thou
sepa	saiba	sappia	let him know
sepamos	saibamos	sappiamo	let us know
sabed, reg.	sabei, reg.	sappiate	know ye sepan.	saibaõ.	sappiano.	let them know.

SPANISH. PORTUGUESE. ITALIAN. ENGLISH.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Sepa	Saiba	Sappia	I may know
sepas	saibas	sappia	thou mayst know
sepa	saiba	sappia	he may know
sepamos	saibamos	sappiamo	we may know
sepais	saibais	sappiate	ye may know
sepan.	saibaõ.	sappiano.	they may know.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Supiera	Soubera	Regular.	I might, could,
or supiese	or soubesse		&c. know
supieras	souberas		thou, &c.
or supieses	or soubesses
supiera	soubera		he, &c.
or supiese	or soubesse
supiéramos	souberamos		we, &c.
or supiésemos	or soubessemos
supiérais	souberais		ye, &c.
or supiéreis	or soubesreis
supieran	souberaõ		they, &c.
or supiesen.	or soubessem.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Sabria	Regular.	Saprei	I would, &c.
			know
sabrias		sapresti	thou, &c.
sabria		saprebbe	he, &c.
sabríamos		sappremmo	we, &c.
sabríaais		sapreste	ye, &c.
sabrian.		sapprebbero.	they, &c.

Future Tense.

Supiere	Souber	—————	I may or shall know
supieres	souberes	—————	thou, &c.
supiere	souber	—————	he, &c.
supiéremos	soubermos	—————	we, &c.
supiéreis	souberdes	—————	ye, &c.
supieren.	souberem.	—————	they, &c.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
INFINITIVE MOOD.
Valer.	Valer.	Valere.	To be worth.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Valgo	Valho	Vaglio	I am worth
vales, reg.	vales, reg.	vali, reg.	thou art worth
vale, reg.	vale or val	vale, reg.	he is worth valemos, reg.	valemos, reg.	valiamo, reg.	we are worth
valeis, reg.	valeis, reg.	valete, reg.	ye are worth valen, reg.	valem, reg.	vagliano.	they are worth.

Preterperfect Tense.

Regular.	Regular.	Valsi	I was worth valesti, reg.	thou wert worth valse	he was worth
		valemmo, reg.	we were worth valeste, reg.	ye were worth valsero.	they were worth.

Future Tense.

Valdré	Regular.	Varrò	I shall be worth
valdrás		varrai	thou, &c.
valdrá		varrà	he, &c.
valdrémos		varremo	we, &c.
valdréis		varrete	ye, &c.
valdrán.		varranno.	they, &c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Vale, reg.	Vale, reg.	Vali	Be thou worth
valga	valha	vaglia	let him be worth valgamos	valhamos	vogliamo	let us be worth valed, reg.	valei, reg.	valete	be ye worth valgan.	valhaõ.	vagliano.	let them be worth.

SPANISH.

PORTUGUESE.

ITALIAN.

ENGLISH.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Valgá	Valha	Vaglia	I may be worth
valgas	valhas	vaglia	thou, &c.
valga	valha	vaglia	he, &c.
valgamos	valhamos	vogliamo	we, &c.
valgais	valhais	vagliate	ye, &c.
valgan.	valhaõ.	vaghano.	they, &c.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Valdria	Regular.	Varrei	I might, &c. be worth
valdrias		varresti	thou, &c.
valdria		varrebbe	he, &c.
valdríamos		varremmo	we, &c.
valdríais		varreste	ye, &c.
valdrian.		varrebbero.	they, &c.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Ver.	Ver.	Vedere.	To see.
------	------	---------	---------

Participle.

Visto.	Visto.	Veduto or visto.	Seen.
--------	--------	------------------	-------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Veo	Vejo	Regular.	I see
ves, reg.	ves, reg.		thou seest
ve, reg.	ve, reg.		he sees vemos, reg.	vemos, reg.		we see veis, reg.	vedes		ye see
ven, reg.	vem, reg.		they see.

SPANISH.

PORTUGUESE.

ITALIAN.

ENGLISH.

Preterimperfect Tense.Regular throughout, and also

Veia	Regular.	Regular.	I saw
veias			thou sawest
veia			he saw
veíamos			we saw
veíais			ye saw
veían.			they saw.

Preterperfect Tense.

Regular.	Vi, reg.	Vidi	I saw
	viste	vedesti, reg.	thou sawest
	vio	vide	he saw
	vimos	vedemmo, reg.	we saw
	vistes	vedeste, reg.	ye saw
	viraõ.	videro.	they saw.

Future Tense.

Regular.	Regular.	Vedrò	I shall see
		vedrai	thou wilt see
		vedrà	he will see
		vedremo	we shall see
		vedrete	ye will see
		vedranno.	they will see.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Ve, reg.	Ve, reg.	Regular.	See thou
vea	veja		let him see
veamos	vejamos		let us see
ved, reg.	vede		see ye
vean.	vejaõ.		let them see.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Veá	Veja	Regular.	I may see
veas	vejas		thou mayst see
vea	veja		he may see
veamos	vejamos		we may see
veáis	vejaís		ye may see
vean.	vejaõ.		they may see.

SPANISH. PORTUGUESE. ITALIAN. ENGLISH.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Regular.	Vira or visse viras or visses vira or visse viramos or vissemos vireis or visseis viraō or vissem.	Regular.	I could, &c. see thou, &c. he, &c. we, &c. ye, &c. they, &c.
-----------------	---	-----------------	---

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Regular.	Regular.	Vedrei vedresti vedrebbe vedremmo vedreste vedrebbero.	I might, &c. see thou, &c. he, &c. we, &c. ye, &c. they, &c.
-----------------	-----------------	---	---

Future Tense.

Regular.	Vir vires vir virmos virdes virem.	———— ———— ———— ———— ——— ————	I may or shall see thou, &c. he, &c. we, &c. ye, &c. they, &c.
-----------------	---	---	---

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Poner. Por, irreg. Ponere or Porre. To place.

Participle.

Puesto. Posto. Posto. Placed.

Gerund.

Regular. Pondo. Regular. Placing.

SPANISH. PORTUGUESE. ITALIAN. ENGLISH.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Pongo	Ponho	Pongo	I place
pones, reg.	poens	poni, reg.	thou placest
pone, reg.	poem	pone, reg.	he places
ponemos, reg.	pomos	poniamo, reg.	we place
poneis, reg.	pondes	ponete, reg.	ye place
ponen, reg.	poem.	pongono.	they place.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Regular.	Punha	Regular,	I placed punhas		thou placedst
	punha		he placed punhamos		we placed punheis		ye placed
	punhaõ.		they placed.

Preterperfect Tense.

Pusé	Puz	Posi or ponei, reg.	I placed
pusi-te	puzeste	ponesti, reg.	thou placedst pusó	poz	pose	he placed pusimos	puzemos	ponemmo, reg.	we placed pusísteis	puzestes	poneste, reg.	ye placed pusieron.	puzeraõ.	posero.	they placed.

Future Tense.

Pondré	Porei	Porrò	I shall place
pondrás	poras	porrai	thou wilt place
pondrá	porá	porrà	he will place
pondrémos	poremos	porremo	we shall place
pondréis	poréis	porrete	ye will place
pondrán.	poraõ.	porrano.	they will place.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Pon	Poem	Poni, reg.	Place thou
ponga	ponha	ponga	let him place
pongamos	ponhamos	poniamo, reg.	let us place
poned, reg.	ponde	ponete	place ye pongan.	ponhaõ.	pongano.	let them place.

SPANISH. PORTUGUESE. ITALIAN. ENGLISH.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Ponga	Ponha	Ponga	I may place
pongas	ponhas	ponga	thou mayst place
ponga	ponha	ponga	he may place
pongamos	ponhamos	poniamo, reg.	we may place
pongais	ponhais	poniate, reg.	ye may place
pongan.	ponhaõ.	pongano.	they may place.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Pusiera	Puzera	Regular.	I might, &c.
or pusiese	or puzesse		place
pusieras	puzeras		thou, &c.
or pusieses	or puzesses
pusiera	puzera		he, &c.
or pusiese	or puzesse
pusiéramos	puzeramos		we, &c.
or pusiésemos	or puzessemos
pusiérais	puzereis		ye, &c.
or pusiéreis	or puzesseis
pusieran	puzeraõ		they, &c.
or pusiesen.	or puzessem.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Pondria	Poria	Porrei	I should, &c.
			place
pondrias	porias	porresti	thou, &c.
pondria	poria	porrebbe	he, &c.
pondríamos	poriamos	porremmo	we, &c.
pondríaís	poriais	porreste	ye, &c.
pondrian.	poriaõ.	porrebbero.	they, &c.

Future Tense.

Pusiere	Puser	—————	I may or shall place
pusieres	puseres	—————	thou, &c.
pusiere	puser	—————	he, &c.
pusiéremos	pusermos	—————	we, &c.
pusiéreis	puserdes	—————	ye, &c.
pusieren.	puserem.	—————	they, &c.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
INFINITIVE MOOD.
Hacer.	Fazer.	Fare*.	To do, or make, &c.

Participle.

Hecho.	Feito.	Fatto.	Done.
--------	--------	--------	-------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Hago	Faço	Fo	I do or make
haces, reg.	fazes, reg.	fai	thou doest hace, reg.	faz	fa	he does hacemos, reg.	fazemos, reg.	facciamo, reg.	we do haceis, reg.	fazeis	fate	ye do
hacen, reg.	fazem.	fanno.	they do.

Præterperfect Tense.

Hicé	Fiz	Feci	I did
hiciste	fizeste	facesti, reg.	thou didst
hizó	fez	fece	he did
hicimos	fizemos	facemmo, reg.	we did hicísteis	fizestes	faceste, reg.	ye did hicieron.	fizeraõ.	fecero.	they did.

Future Tense.

Haré	Farei	Farò	I shall do
harás	faras	farai	thou wilt do
hará	farà	farà	he will do
haremos	faremos	faremo	we shall do haréis	fareis	farete	ye will do
harán.	farãõ.	faranno.	they will do.

* Fare has been conjugated in the Irregular Verbs of the first conjugation; but as its infinitive mood is a contraction from the old verb facere, it seems rather to belong to the second conjugation; to which also its other moods and tenses are more nearly alike than to the first conjugation.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
IMPERATIVE MOOD.
Haz	Faze, reg.	Fa	Do thou
haga	faça	faccia	let him do
hagamos	façamos	facciamo	let us do
haced, reg.	fazei, reg.	fate	do ye hagan.	façaõ.	facciano.	let them do.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Haga	Faça	Faccia	I may do
hagas	faças	faccia	thou mayst do
haga	faça	faccia	he may do
hagamos	façamos	facciamo	we may do hagais	façais	facciate	ye may do
hagan.	façaõ.	facciano.	they may do.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Hiciera	Fizera	Regular.	I would, could,
or hiciese	or fizesse		&c. do
hicieras	fizeras		thou, &c.
or hicieses	or fizesses
hiciera	fizera		he, &c.
or hiciese	or fizesse
hiciéramos	fizeramos		we, &c.
or hiciésemos	or fizessemos
hiciérais	fizereis		ye, &c.
or hiciéseis	or fizesseis
hicieran	fizeraõ		they, &c.
or hiciesen.	or fizessem.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Haria	Faria	Farei	I would, &c. do
harias	farias	faresti	thou, &c.
haria	faria	farebbe	he, &c.
haríamos	fariamos	faremmo	we, &c.
haríais	fariáis	fareste	ye, &c.
harian.	fariaõ.	farebbero.	they, &c.

SPANISH. PORTUGUESE. ITALIAN. ENGLISH.

Future Tense.

Hiciere	Fizer	————	I may or shall do
hicieres	fizeres	————	thou, &c.
hiciere	fizer	————	he, &c.
hiciéremos	fizermos	————	we, &c.
hiciéreis	fizerdes	————	ye, &c.
hicieren.	fizerem.	————	they, &c.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Querer.	Querer.	Volere*.	To be willing.
---------	---------	----------	----------------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Quiero	Quero, reg.	Voglio	I am willing quieres	quieres, reg.	vuoi	thou art willing quiere	qucr	vuole	he is willing queremos, reg.	queremos, reg.	vogliamo	we are willing quereis, reg.	quereis, reg.	volete, reg.	ye are willing quieren.	querem, reg.	vogliono.	they are willing.

Preterperfect Tense.

Quisé	Quiz	Volli	I was willing quisiste	quiziste	volesti, reg.	thou wast willing quisó	quiz	volle	he was willing quisimos	quizemos	volemmo, reg.	we were willing quisisteis	quizestes	voleste, reg.	ye were willing quisiéron.	quizeraõ.	vollero.	they were willing.

* Volere answers to Querer in signification; and although it is not derived from the same parent verb, yet as it is irregular, and of the same conjugation, it is given here instead of separately.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Future Tense.
Querré	Regular.	Vorrò	I shall be willing querrás		vorrai	thou, &c.
querrá		vorrà	he, &c.
querrémos		vorremo	we, &c.
querréis		vorrete	ye, &c.
querran.		vorranno.	they &c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Quiere	Queiras	None.	Be thou willing quiera	queira		let him be willing queramos, reg.	queiramos		let us be willing quered, reg.	queirais		be ye willing quieran.	queiraõ.		let them, &c.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Quiera	Queira	Voglia	I may be willing quieras	queiras	voglia	thou, &c.
quiera	queira	voglia	he, &c.
queramos	queiramos	vogliamo	we, &c.
querais	queirais	vogliate	ye, &c.
quieran.	queiraõ.	vogliano.	they, &c.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Quisiera	Quizera	Regular.	I might be willing
or quisiese	or quizesse
quisieras	quizeras		thou, &c.
or quisieses	or quizesses
quisiera	quizera		he, &c.
or quisiese	or quizesse
quisiéramos	quizeramos		we, &c.
or quisiésemos	or quizessemos
quisiérais	quizerais		ye, &c.
or quisiéscis	or quizesseis
quisieran	quizerãõ		they, &c.
or quisiesen.	or quizessem.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
----------	-------------	----------	----------

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Querria	Regular.	Vorrei	I should be willing querrias		vorresti	thou, &c.
querria		vorrebbi	he, &c.
querriámos		vorremmo	we, &c.
querriáis		vorreste	ye, &c.
querrian.		vorrebbero.	they, &c.

Future Tense.

Quisiere	Quizer	————	I shall or may be willing quisieres	quizeres	————	thou, &c.
quisiere	quizer	————	he, &c.
quisiéremos	quizermos	————	we, &c.
quisiéreis	quizerdes	————	ye, &c.
quisieren.	quizerem.	————	they, &c.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ENGLISH.
Traer.	Trazer.	To bring*.

Gerund.

Trayendo.	Regular.	Bringing.
-----------	-----------------	-----------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Traygo	Trago	I bring.
traes, reg.	trazes, reg.	thou bringest
trae, reg.	traz	he brings traemos, reg.	trazemos, reg.	we bring
&c.	&c.	&c.

* The Italian verb Traere or Trarre will be found below.—See p. 109.

SPANISH.

PORTUGUESE.

ENGLISH.

Preterperfect Tense.

Traxé	Trouxe	I brought
traxiste	trouxiste	thou broughtest
traxó	trouxe	he brought traximos	trouxemos	we brought traxísteis	trouxestes	ye brought traxéron.	trouxeraõ.	they brought.

N.B. Truxe, truxiste, &c. are used only by the lower orders.

Future Tense.Regular.

Trarei	I shall bring traras	thou wilt bring trará	he will bring traremos	we shall bring trareis	ye will bring traraõ.	they will bring.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Træe, reg.	Træze, reg.	Bring thou trayga	traga	let him bring traygamos	tragamos	let us bring traed, reg.	træzei, reg.	bring ye traygan.	tragaõ.	let them bring.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Trayga	Traga	I may bring traygas	tragas	thou mayst bring trayga	traga	he may bring traygamos	tragamos	we may bring traygais	tragais	ye may bring traygan.	tragaõ.	they may bring.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ENGLISH.
Preterimperfect Tense.
Traxera or traxese	Trouxera or trouxesse	I might, could, would, or should bring traxeras or traxeses	trouxeras or trouxesses	thou, &c.
traxera or traxese	trouxera or trouxesse	he, &c.
traxéramos or traxésemos	trouxeramos or trouxessemos	we, &c.
traxérais or traxéseis	trouxereis or trouxesseis	ye, &c.
traxeran or traxesen.	trouxeraō or trouxessem.	they, &c.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Regular.	Traria	I should, would, &c. bring trarias	thou, &c.
	traria	he, &c.
	trariamnos	we, &c.
	trarieis	ye, &c.
	trariaō.	they, &c.

Future Tense.

Traxere	Trouxer	I shall or may bring traxeres	trouxeres	thou, &c.
traxere	trouxer	he, &c.
traxéremos	trouxermos	we, &c.
traxéreis	trouxerdes	ye, &c.
traxeren.	trouxerem.	they, &c.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Caer.	Cahir.	Cadere.	To fall.

The Portuguese Cahir is not of this conjugation.

The Italian Cadere is regular throughout, except in doubling the d in the first and second persons singular and third person plural of the preterperfect tense indicative mood, and in its compound tenses being formed by essere.

Gerund.

SPANISH.

Cayendo.

ENGLISH.

Falling.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

*Present Tense.*Caygo, caes, cae, &c. regular.

I fall, &c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Cae, reg., cayga; caygamos, caed, reg., caygan. Fall thou, &c.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Cayga, caygas, cayga; caygamos, caygais, caygan. I may fall, &c.

SPANISH.

Oler.

ENGLISH.

To smell.

The Portuguese is Cheivar, and the Italian Odorare, or Avere odore, neither of which belongs to this conjugation, nor is irregular.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

*Present Tense.*Huelo, hueles, huele; olemos, reg., olcis, reg., huelen. I smell, &c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Huele tu, huela el; olamos nos^{s.}, oled vos^{s.}, huelan ellos. Smell
reg. reg. thou, &c.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

*Present Tense.*Huela, huelas, huela; olamos, olais, huelan. I may smell, &c.
reg. reg.

SPANISH.

ENGLISH.

Caber*.

To fit, suit, to be contained in.

The Portuguese is also Caber, but regular.The Italian Capire, but not of this conjugation.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

*Present Tense.*Yo quepo, tu cabes, &c., regular.

I am contained in.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Cupé, cupiste, cupó; cupimos, cupísteis, cupieron. I was contained.

Future Tense.

Cabré, cabrás, cabrá; cabrémos, cabréis, cabrán. I shall or will fit.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Cabe tu, quepa; quepamos, cabed, reg., quepan. Fit thou, &c.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Quepa, quepas, quepa; quepamos, quepais, quepan. I may fit, &c.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Cupiera,	cupieras,	cupiera;	cupiéramos,	cupiérais,	cupieran.	} I might, &c.
or	or	or	or	or	or cupiese,	cupieses,	cupiese;	cupiésemos,	cupiéseis,	cupiesen.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Cabria, cabrias, cabaia; cabríamos, cabríais, cabrian. I would, &c.

*Future Tense.*Cupiere, cupieres, cupiere; cupiéremos, cupiéreis, cupieren. I may or shall fit.

* There appears to be no verb in English answering exactly to the meaning conveyed by Caber, which according to the Dictionary of the Royal Academy of Madrid is "Poder contenerse una cosa dentro de otra," For one thing to be capable of being contained within another: besides which original signification there are various others, for which see the abovementioned Dictionary.

The foregoing with their compounds are all the irregular verbs of the second conjugation in the Spanish language, and nearly all those in the Portuguese. The following are what have not been already given in this latter language.

PORTUGUESE.

Dizer.

ENGLISH.

To say.

The Spanish verb is Decir, and the Italian Dire, both of the third conjugation, although evidently derived from the same root. Indeed the Italian verb is supposed to have been originally Dicere, and contracted into Dire.

Participle.

Ditto.

Said.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Digo, dizes, diz; dizemos, dizeis, dizem. I say, &c.
reg. reg. reg. reg. reg.

Preterperfect Tense.

Disse, disseste, disse; dissemos, dissestes, disseraõ. I said, &c.

Future Tense.

Dirci, diras, dirà; diremos, direis, diraõ. I shall say, &c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Dize tu, reg., diga; digamos, dizei, reg., digaõ. Say, &c.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Diga, digas, diga; digamos, digais, digaõ. I may say, &c.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Dissera, disseras, dissera; disseramos, disserais, disseraõ.

or or or or or or dissesse, dissesseis, dissesse; dissessemos, dissesseis, dissessem.

I might, &c. say, &c.

PORTUGUESE.

ENGLISH.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Diria, dirias, diria ; diriamos, dirieis, diriaõ. I would, &c. say,
&c.

Future Tense.

Disser, disseres, disser ; dissermos, disserdes, disserem. I may or shall say.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Perder*.	Perder.	Perdere.	To lose.

Participle.

Regular.	Regular.	Perduto or Perso.	Lost.
-----------------	-----------------	-------------------	-------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Pierdo	Perco	Regular.	I lose
pierdes	perdes, reg.		thou lovest
pierde	perde, reg.		he loses
perdemos, reg.	perdemos, reg.		we lose perdeis, reg.	perdeis, reg.		ye lose pierden.	perdem, reg.		they lose.

Preterperfect Tense.

Regular.	Regular.	Perdei, Perdetti, or Persi, &c. reg.	I lost, &c.
-----------------	-----------------	---	-------------

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Pierde	Perde, reg.	Regular.	Lose thou pierda	perca		let him lose perdamos, reg.	percamos		let us lose perded, reg.	perdei, reg.		lose ye pierden.	percaõ.		let them lose.

* Irregular only by the insertion of an i before the e of the penultimate syllable in the present tenses, as has been before observed at page 73.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
----------	-------------	----------	----------

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Pierda	Perca	Regular.	I may lose pierdas	percas		thou mayst lose pierda	perca		he may lose
perdamos, reg.	percamos		we may lose perdais, reg.	percais		ye may lose pierdan.	percaõ.		they may lose.

The compound verbs follow the irregularity of the verbs from which they are derived or formed. However,

In the Spanish, Satisfacer differs from Hacer in the imperative mood, which may be satisfaz or satisface, &c.

And in the Portuguese, Prover, (one of the compounds of Ver;) when it signifies To take care of, or To provide for or against, being a verb neuter, is conjugated in the indicative mood present tense

Provenho, provens, provem; provimos, provindes, provem.

But when it signifies To provide, furnish, supply, or To make provision, being a verb active, it is conjugated in that mood and tense

Provejo, prove, prove; provemos, proveis, provem.

The compounds of Ter (which belongs to this conjugation although given among the Auxiliary Verbs) are conjugated like it.

There are some verbs irregular in the participle only; as escrito from Escrever, To write; absolto from Absolver, To absolve. Ler, To read, makes leyo in the first person singular, and ledes in the second person plural, of the present tense indicative mood; in the second person plural of the imperative it makes lede.—Crer, To believe, has a similar irregularity.

In the Italian, the irregular verbs of this conjugation, besides what have been already given, are many. Indeed the only regular verbs are about twenty : viz.

Battère, to beat ; bevère or bere, to drink ; cedère, to yield ; credère, to believe ; fendère, to cleave ; fremère, to fret ; gemère, to groan ; godère, to enjoy ; mietère, to reap ; pascère, to feed ; pendère, to hang ; recère, to vomit ; ricevère, to receive ; rilucère, to shine (also irregular) ; sedère, to sit down ; splendère, to shine ; serpère, to slide ; stridère, to murmur ; temère, to fear ; vendère, to sell : all the rest are irregular.—The verbs in ere may be reduced to two classes, the one having the penultima long, and the other short. Of the former there are only nineteen verbs, (excepting however the compounds,) of which only three are regular, viz. godère, sedère, temère: the other sixteen are irregular.—The conjugations of sapère, to know ; potère, to be able ; volère, to be willing ; cadère, to fall ; valère, to be worth ; and vedère, to see, have been already given. Those of the others are as follows ; the irregular tenses only being noted.

ITALIAN.

Dovère.

ENGLISH.

To owe.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Devo, devi, deve ; dobbiamo, dovete, devono or debbono. I owe, &c.

Future Tense.

Dovrò, dovrai, dovrà ; dovremo, dovrete, dovranno. I shall owe, &c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Devi, debba ; dobbiamo, dobbiate, debbano. Owe thou, &c.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Debba, debba, debba; dobbiamo, dobbiate, debbano. I may owe, &c.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Dovrei, dovresti, dovrebbe; dovremmo, dovrete, dovrebbero. I might, &c. owe, &c.

ITALIAN.

ENGLISH.

Dolere or Dolersi.

To grieve or complain.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Io mi dolgo or doglio, tu ti duoli, egli si duole; noi ci dogliamo, voi vi dolete, reg. eglino si dolgono or dogliono. I grieve, &c.

Preterperfect Tense.

Mi dolsi, ti dolesti, si dolse; ci dolemmo, vi doleste, si dolsero. I reg. grieved.

Future Tense.

Mi dorrò, ti dorrai, si dorrà; ci dorremo, vi dorrete, si dorrano. I shall grieve, &c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Duoliti, dolgasi; dogliamoci, doletevi, dolgansi. Grieve, &c. reg.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Che Mi dolga, ti dolga, si dolga or doglia; ci dogliamo, vi dogliate, si dogliano. That I may grieve.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Mi dorrei, ti dorresti, si dorrebbe; ci dorremmo, vi dorreste, si dorrebbero. I might grieve, &c.

The compound tenses are formed with Essere; as Mi sono doluto, I have grieved.

Giacēre, To lie down; Piacēre, To please; and Tacēre, To hold one's tongue, are conjugated alike. The first therefore is only given here, as substituting piac- and tac- for giac- will give the conjugations of the other two verbs.

ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Giacēre.	To lie down.
Participle.
Giacciuto.	Lain down.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Giaccio, giaci, giace; giacciamo, giacete, giacciono. I lie down, &c.
reg. reg. reg.

Preterperfect Tense.

Giacqui, giacesti, giacque; giacemmo, giaceste, giacquero. I lay down, &c.
reg. reg. reg.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Giaci, giaccia, giacciamo; giacete, giacciano. Lie down, &c.
reg. reg.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Giaccia, giaccia, giaccia; giacciamo, giacciate, giacciano. I may lie down, &c.

Giacere requires the auxiliary verb Essere for its compound tenses, but the other two, Avere. It is also in use to say Stato a giacere, in lieu of Giacciuto; as Sono stato a giacere, I have lain down.

ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Parēre.	To seem.
Participle.
Parso.	Seemed.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Paio, pari, reg. pare, reg.; paiamo, parete, reg., paiouc. I seem, &c.

Preterperfect Tense.

Parvi, paresti, parve; paremmo, pareste, parvero. I seemed, &c.
reg. reg. reg.

Future Tense.

Parrò, parrai, parrà; parremo, parrete, parranno. I shall or will seem, &c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Pari, reg., paia; paiamo, parete, reg., paiano. Seem, &c.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Paia, paia, paia; paiamo or pariamo, paiate, paiano. I may seem,
reg. &c.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Parrei, parresti, parrebbe; parremmo, parreste, parrebbero. I might seem, &c.

ITALIAN.

Persuadēre.

ENGLISH.

To persuade.

Participle.

Persuaso.

Persuaded.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Preterperfect Tense.

Persuasi, persuadesti, persuade; persuademmo, persuadeste, reg.
reg. persuascro.
 I persuaded, &c.

ITALIAN.

Rimanēre.

ENGLISH.

To remain.

Participle.

Rimaso.

Remained.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Rimango, rimani, rimane; rimaniamo, rimanete, rimangono. I remain, &c.

Preterperfect Tense.

Rimasi, rimanesti, rimase ; rimanemmo, rimaneste, rimasero. I rereg. reg. reg. mained, &c.

Future Tense.

Rimarro, rimarrai, rimarra ; rimarremo, rimarrete, rimarranno. I shall or will remain, &c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Rimani, rimanga ; rimaniamo, rimanete, rimangano. Remain, &c.
reg. reg. reg.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Rimanga, rimanga, rimanga ; rimaniamo, rimaniate, rimangano. I may remain, &c.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Rimarrei, rimarresti, rimarrebbe ; rimarremmo, rimarreste, rimarrebbero. I should remain, &c.

ITALIAN.

Solère.

ENGLISH.

To be wont.

Participle.

Solito.

Wont.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Soglio, suoli, suole ; sogliamo, solete, reg., sogliono. I am wont.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Suoli, soglia ; sogliamo, solete, reg., sogliano. Be thou wont, &c.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Soglia, soglia, soglia ; sogliamo, sogliate, sogliano. I may be wont.

N.B. Compound tenses with Essere ; as Sono solito.

Tenēre, To hold, and Avēre, To have, both belong to the irregular verbs of this conjugation ; but their conjugations have already been given at length in the Auxiliary Verbs.

The foregoing with their compounds are all the irregular verbs in ēre long: on which it may here be remarked, that when the verb is irregular in the present tense indicative mood, the same irregularity will be found in the imperative mood and present tense subjunctive mood. The irregularities of the future tenses indicative mood, and preterimperfect conditional tense subjunctive mood, are very easily remembered, they being only the omission of the penultimate e of the infinitive mood, or the changing of the first consonant of that syllable into an r ; as sapēre, vedēre, docēre, make in the future tense saprò, vedrò, docrò ; and valēre, volēre, dolēre, ponēre, parēre, tenēre, rimanēre, make varrò, vorrò, dorrò, porrò, parrò, terrò, rimarrò, instead of saperò, vederò, &c. valerò, volerò, &c.

The preterimperfect tenses of both moods are throughout regular ; and in the preterperfect tenses indicative mood, in which the greatest irregularity of this conjugation consists, both in the verbs in ēre long and in ēre short, there are three persons regular and three irregular. The former are the second person singular and first and second persons plural, and the latter the first and third persons singular and third person plural. There is no great difficulty in remembering their formation, as the first person singular always terminates in i ; change this i into e, and it gives the third person singular ; add ro to the latter, and it becomes the third person plural. The second person singular of all verbs, regular and irregular, is formed from the infinitive by the change of its final re into sti; change the final i of this second person singular into e, and you have the second person plural; change the final re of the infinitive into mmo, and you form the first person plural: ex. gr.

Vincere.

	Singular.			Plural.
	1. pers.	2.	3.	1.	2.	3.
Irregular	Vins-i,	_____	vins-e;	_____	_____	vins-ero.
Regular	_____	vince-sti,	_____	vince-mmo,	vince-ste,	_____.

By carefully attending to this rule, a great deal of the difficulty of the conjugations of the verbs in ère short will be obviated: of which seventeen only are regular*: the rest are irregular, some in the present, most in the preterperfect, some in the future tenses, and almost all in the participle. The following five form their preterperfect tense, and participles, thus,

Infinit. mood.	Preterperf.	Participle.	English Infin.
	1st pers. singular.
Conoscere	Conobbi	Conosciuto	To know
Crescere	Crebbi	Cresciuto	To grow
Nascere	Nacqui	Nato	To be born
Nuocere	Nocqui	Nuociuto	To hurt
Rompere	Ruppi	Rotto	To break.

Speaking generally, all the other verbs in ère short form their preterperfect tense in si, and their participle in so, to, or sto; to find which you must observe that these verbs have thirteen different terminations, viz. in cère, dère, gère, glière, hère, lère; mère, nère,

* For the seventeen regular verbs see the list given page 100.

ndere, p̄ere, r̄ere, t̄ere, v̄ere. Change all these terminations into si, and you have the preterperfect tense of each; the first, the third, to the sixth, make the participle in to; the remainder in so or esso. The termination gliere, however, retains the l; as Cogliere makes colsi and colto: and verbs written with a double g before the penultimate syllable drop both, and double the s of the preterperfect and the t of the participle; as Leggēre makes lessi and letto.

By attending to the foregoing rules all the irregularity of the verbs in ĕre may be learned, except one or two slight deviations in the following verbs:

Cuoĕre, to bake. Preterperfect—Cossi, cuocesti, cosse, cuocemmo, cuoceste, cossero. Participle—Cotto.

Conducĕre and Condurre, to conduct. Preterperfect—Condussi, conducesti, &c. Future—Condurrò, &c. Subjunctive mood, preterimperfect conditional—Condurrei, &c. Participle—Condotta.

Rilucĕre, to shine. Preterperfect—Rilussi, rilucesti, &c. No participle.

Chiudĕre, to shut. Preterperfect—Chiusi and Chiudei, &c. Participle—Chiuso. reg.

Chiedĕre, to ask. Preterperfect—Chiesi and Chiedei, &c. Participle—Chiesto and Chieduto. reg.

Perdĕre, to lose. Preterperfect—Persi and Perdei, &c. Participle—Perso and Perduto. reg.
reg.

Succedĕre, to succeed, } though compounds of the reand } gular verb Cedĕre, besides Concedĕre, to concede, } their regular terminations for the preterperfect tense and participle, make Successi, Successo; Concessi, Concesso.

Attendere, to attend. Preterperfect—Attesi and Attendei, &c. Participle—Atteso. reg.

Prendere, to take. Preterperfect—Presi and Prendei, &c. Participle—Preso. reg.

Rendere, to render. Preterperfect—Resi and Rendei, &c. Participle—Reso and Renduto, reg.

Fendere, to cleave, } are regular; but their compounds and } are irregular, making the pre-Pendere, to hang, } terperfect in si and the participle in so; as

Difendere, to defend. Preterperfect—Difesi. Participle—Difeso, &c.

Spargere, to sprinkle. Preterperfect—Sparsi, &c.
Participle—Sparso and Sparto, &c.

The other verbs in gère have their participle in to;
they also have their preterperfect tense in ei and etti,
as well as in si.

ITALIAN.

ENGLISH.

Coglière or Corre, and Cor. To gather.

Participle.

Colto.

Gathered.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Colgo and coglio, cogli, coglie; cogliamo, cogliete, cogliono and
reg. reg. reg. reg. reg. reg. [colgono.

Preterperfect Tense.

Colsi, cogliesti, colse; cogliemmo, coglieste, colsero.
reg. reg. reg.

Future Tense.

Corrò, corrai, corrà; corremo, correte, corranno.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Cogli, colga or coglia; cogliamo, cogliete, cogliano or colgano.
reg. reg. reg. reg.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Che
 Coglia reg., or colga, &c.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Correi, &c. &c.

All the other verbs in gliere have the same irregularities as Cogliere.

ITALIAN.

Trahere.

ENGLISH.

To draw.

Now written Traere, and also further contracted in the infinitive into Trarre and Trar.

Participle.

Tratto.

Drawn.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Traggo or trao, trai, trae; traghiamo or trajamo, traete, traggono and traono.

Preterperfect Tense.

Trassi, traesti, &c.

Future Tense.

Trarrò, &c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Trai, tragga and tràa; traghiamo and trajamo, traete, traggono.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.Che

Tragga and Traa, &c.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Trarrei, &c.

Premère, to press. Preterperfect—Pressi and Premei, or Premetti, &c. Participle—Premuto. Its compounds in imère make the preterperfect in ssi, and the participle in so.

The compounds of Sumère make Sunsi and Sunso.

Ponère has been conjugated at length with the Spanish and Portuguese verbs Poner and Por.

Rispondère, to answer. Preterperfect—Risposi, &c. Participle—Risposito.

Nascondère, to hide. Preterperfect—Nascosi, &c. Participle—Nascosto and Nascoso.

Fondère, to melt. Preterperfect—Fondei and Fusi, &c. Participle—Fonduto and Fuso.

Tondère, to shear. Preterperfect—Tondei, &c. Participle—Tonduto.

Rompère, to break. Preterperfect—Ruppi and Rompei, &c. Participle—Rotto.

Mettère, to put. Preterperfect—Misi, &c. Participle—Messo.

Promettère, to promise. Preterperfect—Promessi and Promisi. Participle—Promesso.

Riflettère, to reflect, is irregular only in the participle, which is Riflettuto.

Riscuotère, to receive. Preterperfect—Riscossi, &c. Participle—Riscosso.

Scuotère, to shake. Preterperfect—Scossi, &c. Participle—Scosso.

Percuotère, to strike. Preterperfect—Percossi and Percopei, &c. Participle—Percosso.

Producère, to produce; Adducère, to allege; Riducère, to reduce; Inducère, to persuade; Seducère, to seduce; Conducère, to conduct; Deducère, to deduct; Traducère, to translate, are all contracted in the infinitive mood: as Produrre, Addurre, &c. and also Produr, Addur, &c. Their preterperfects are Produssi, Addussi, &c.; and their participles Prodotto, Addotto, &c.

Muovère and Movère, to move. Preterperfect—Mossi, &c. Participle—Mosso. Its compounds form their preterperfect also in ei, Promuovei, &c.

Scrivère, to write. Preterperfect—Scrissi and Scrivei, &c. Participle—Scritto.

Vivère, to live. Preterperfect—Vivetti and Vissi, &c. Participle—Vivuto and Vissuto.

Absolvère, to absolve. Preterperfect—Assolvetti and Assolvi, &c. Participle—Assolto.

Risolvère, to resolve. Preterperfect—Risolsi, Risolvei, and Risolvetti. Participle—Risoluto.

Estinguère, to extinguish. Preterperfect—Estinsi, &c. Participle—Estinto.

Irregular Verbs of the Third Conjugation.

In the Spanish.—Verbs ending in uir take a y between the radical letters and the terminations of the three present tenses, excepting in those of the first and second persons plural of the indicative mood and of the second person plural of the imperative mood. They also change the i of the terminations into y, in the third persons of the preterperfect tense indicative mood, in all the persons of the preterimperfect and future tenses subjunctive mood, and in the gerund : ex. gr.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

SPANISH.	ENGLISH.
Arguir.	To argue.

Gerund.

Arguyendo.	Arguing.
------------	----------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Arguyo, arguyes, arguye;	arguimos, arguis, arguyen.	I argue,
reg.	reg.	&c.

Preterperfect Tense.

Arguí, arguiste, arguyó;	arguimos, argúisteis, arguyéron.	I
reg.	reg.	argued, &c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Arguye, arguya;	arguyamos, arguid, arguyan.	Argue, &c.
	reg.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Arguya, arguyas, arguya;	arguyamos, arguyais, arguyan.
--------------------------	-------------------------------

Preterimperfect Tense.

Arguyera and Arguyese, &c.

Future Tense.

Arguyere, arguyeres, &c.

All verbs ending in ucir take a z before the c, when the consonant is followed by the vowel a or o, in like manner as the verbs of the second conjugation in ecer, &c.; besides which irregularity the verbs in ducir have the following in the preterperfect tense indicative mood, and in the preterimperfect and future tenses subjunctive mood.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Conducir. To conduct.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Conduzco, conduces, reg. conduce, reg. &c. &c.

Preterperfect Tense.

Conduché, conduxiste, condujó; condujimos, condujisteis, condujéron.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Condujera, condujeras, &c. &c. or Condujese, or condujese.

Future Tense.

Condujere, condujeres, &c. &c.

Sentir, To feel, takes an i before its radical vowel e in some persons, and changes the e into i in others. There is a similar irregularity in the Portuguese verb Sentir, though not to such an extent; that is, in the Portuguese the e becomes i when o or a follows the t.

SPANISH.

PORTUGUESE.

ENGLISH.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Sentir. Sentir. To feel.

Gerund.

Sintiendo. Regular. Feeling.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ENGLISH.
INDICATIVE MOOD.
Present Tense.
Siento	Sinto	I feel
sientes	sentes, reg.	thou feelest siente	sente, reg.	he feels sentimos, reg.	sentemos, reg.	we feel sentis, reg.	senteis, reg.	ye feel sienten.	sentem, reg.	they feel.

Preterperfect Tense.

Third persons only irreg. Regular throughout.

Sintió		He felt
sintieron.		they felt.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Siente	Sente, reg.	Feel thou sienta	sinta	let him feel sintamos	sintamos	let us feel sentid, reg.	senti, reg.	feel ye sientan.	sintaõ.	let them feel.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Sienta	Sinta	I may feel:
sientas	sintas	thou mayst feel sienta	sinta	he may feel sintamos	sintamos	we may feel sintais	sintais	ye may feel sientan.	sintaõ.	they may feel.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Sintiera or Sintiese, and so throughout.	Regular.	I might, &c. feel, &c.
--	-----------------	------------------------

Future Tense.

Sintiere, and so throughout.	Regular.	I may or shall feel, &c.
---	-----------------	-----------------------------

These irregularities in the Spanish will be easily retained by bearing in mind that the former, that is, the taking a y in the verbs in uir, and an i in Sentir, &c. before the vowel e, occurs in the same tenses and persons as a similar addition of a vowel does in the verbs Acertar and Acostar, which see; and that the changing the vowel e into i is in the third persons preterperfect tense indicative mood, first person imperative, first person plural subjunctive mood present tense, and in all the persons of the preterimperfect and future tenses subjunctive mood.

The following verbs in Spanish have the same irregularities as Sentir, viz. adherir, advertir, arrepentir, asentir, conferir, consentir, controvertir, concertir, deferir, digerir, divertir, erguir: this verb has also an h before the additional i, and loses its u before a and o: herir, herir, inferir, invertir, inxerir, mentir, pervertir, preferir, requerir, referir, sugerir, zaherir.

The Portuguese verbs which have the same irregularity that Sentir has, are advertir, despir, ferir, mentir, repetir, servir, vestir, and their compounds.

Pedir, To beg, changes, in Spanish, the radical e into i in all those tenses and persons in which Sentir either takes an i before its e or changes its e for i.

This verb Pedir, in Portuguese, is also irregular in the same persons and tenses in which Sentir is, but in a different way, changing the d into a ç: ex. gr.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ENGLISH.
INFINITIVE MOOD.
Pedir.	Pedir.	To beg.
INDICATIVE MOOD.
Present Tense.
Pido	Peço	I beg
pides	pedes, reg.	thou beggest
pide	pede, reg.	he begs pedimos, reg.	pedimos, reg.	we beg pedis, reg.	pedis, reg.	ye beg piden.	pedem, reg.	they beg.

And so on in the other tenses; and in like manner in the Spanish—Arrecir, cenir, colegir, competir, concebir, constreñir, derretir, desleir, elegir, (participle electo and elegido), envestir, engreir, freir, (participle frito and freido): and in the Portuguese medir, are conjugated.

Dormir, To sleep, changes, in the Spanish, the o into ue in those tenses and persons in which Acostar has a similar change, or in which Sentir takes an i before the e; it also changes the o into u in those tenses in which Sentir changes the e into i. In the Portuguese also this verb changes the o into u in those tenses and persons in which Sentir changes the e into i, that is, when the m is followed by a or o.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ENGLISH.
----------	-------------	----------

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Dormir.	Dormir.	To sleep.
---------	---------	-----------

Gerund.

Durmiendo.	Regular.	Sleeping.
------------	----------	-----------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Duermo	Durmo	I sleep
duermes	dormes, reg.	thou sleepest duerme	dorme, reg.	he sleeps dormimos, reg.	dormimos, reg.	we sleep
dormis, reg.	dormeis, reg.	ye sleep
duermen.	dormem, reg.	they sleep.

Preterperfect Tense.

Third persons only irreg. Regular throughout.

Durmió		He slept
durmieron.		they slept.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ENGLISH.
IMPERATIVE MOOD.
Duerme	Dorme, reg.	Sleep thou duerma	durma	let him sleep
durmamos	durmamos	let us sleep
dormid, reg.	dormi, reg.	sleep ye duerman.	darmaõ.	let them sleep.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Duerma	Durma	I may sleep
duermas	durmas	thou mayst sleep
duerma	durma	he may sleep
durmamos	durmamos	we may sleep
durmais	durmais	ye may sleep
duerman.	durmaõ.	they may sleep.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Durmiera or Durmiese. Regular.	I might, &c. sleep.
And so throughout.

Future Tense.

Durmiere. Regular.	I may or shall sleep.
And so throughout.

In the Spanish—Morir, To die, whose participle is muerto, has the same irregularity as Dormir. And Podrir, To rot, changes the o into u in all the persons and moods in which Dormir changes the o either into ue or u.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
INFINITIVE MOOD.
Venir.	Vir.	Venire.	To come.
Participle.
Regular.	Vindo.	Venuto.	Come.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
----------	-------------	----------	----------

Gerund.

Viniendo.	Vindo.	Regular.	Coning.
-----------	--------	-----------------	---------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Vengo	Venho	Vengo	I come
viencs	vencs	vienci	thou comest
viene	ven	viene	he comes venimos, reg.	vimos, reg.	veniamo or venghiamo, reg.	we come venis, reg.	vindes	venite, reg.	ye come vienen.	vem.	vengono.	they come.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Regular.	Vinha	Regular.	I came vinhas		thou camest
	vinha		he came vinhamos		we came vinheis		ye came
	vinhaõ.		they came.

Preterperfect Tense.

Viné	Vim	Venni	I came
viniste or veniste	vieste	venisti, reg.	thou camest
vinó	veio	venne	he came vinimos or venimos	vimos	venimmo, reg.	we came vinisteis or venisteis	viestes	veniste, reg.	ye came vinieron.	vieraõ.	vennero.	they came.

Future Tense.

Vendré	Regular.	Verrò	I shall come vendrás		verrai	thou wilt come vendrá		verrà	he will come vendrémos		verremo	we shall come vendréis		verrete	ye will come vendrán.		verranno.	they will come.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
IMPERATIVE MOOD.
Ven	Vem	Vieni	Come thou
venga	venha	venga	let him come vengamos	venhamos	veniamo, reg.	let us come venid, reg.	vinde	venite, reg.	come ye vengan.	venhaõ.	vengano.	let them come.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Venga	Venha	Venga	I may come
vengas	venhas	venga	thou mayst come venga	venha	venga	he may come vengamos	venhamos	veniamo	we may come vengais	venhais	venghiate	ye may come vengan.	venhaõ.	vengano.	they may come.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Viniera	Viera	Regular.	I might, &c.
or Viniese	or Viesse		come
vinieras	vieras		thou, &c.
or vinicies	or viesseis
viniera	viera		he, &c.
or viniese	or viesse
viniéramos	vieramos		we, &c.
or viniésemos	or viessemos
viniérais	vierais		ye, &c.
or viniéseis	or viesseis
vinieran	vieraõ		they, &c.
or viniesen.	or viessem.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Vendria	Regular.	Verrei	I should, &c.
			come
vendrias		verresti	thou, &c.
vendria		verrebbe	he, &c.
vendríamos		verremmo	we, &c.
vendríaais		verreste	ye, &c.
vendrian.		verrebbero.	they, &c.

SPANISH. PORTUGUESE. ITALIAN. ENGLISH.

Future Tense.

Viniere	Regular.	None.	I shall or may come vinieres			thou wilt or mayst, &c.
viniere			he, &c.
viniéremos			we shall, &c.
viniéreis			ye will, &c.
vinierem.			they, &c.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Oir.	Ouvir.	Udire.	To hear.
------	--------	--------	----------

Gerund.

Oyendo.	Regular.	Regular.	Hearing.
---------	-----------------	-----------------	----------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Oygo	Ouço	Odo	I hear
oyes	ouves, reg.	odi	thou hearest
oye	ouve, reg.	ode	he hears oimos, reg.	ouvimos, reg.	udiamo, reg.	we hear ois, reg.	ouveis, reg.	udite, reg.	ye hear oyen.	ouvem, reg.	odono.	they hear.

Preterperfect Tense.

Third persons only irreg.	Regular	Regular
	throughout.	throughout.
Oyò			He heard
oyeron.			they heard.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Oye	Ouve, reg.	Odi	Hear thou
oyga	ouça	oda	let him hear oygamos	ouçamos	udiamo, reg.	let us hear oid, reg.	ouvi, reg.	udite, reg.	hear ye oygan.	ouçaõ.	odono.	let them hear.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
----------	-------------	----------	----------

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Oyga	Ouça	Oda	I may hear
oygas	ouças	oda	thou mayst hear oyga	ouça	oda	he may hear oygamos	ouçamos	odiamo	we may hear oygais	ouçais	odiate	ye may hear
oygan.	ouçaõ.	odano.	they may hear.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Oyera or Oyese. Regular.	Regular.	I might, &c.
And so throughout.		hear, &c.

Future Tense.

Oyere and so on. Regular.	None.	I may or shall hear.
----------------------------------	--------------	----------------------

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Salir.	Sahir.	Salire.	To go out, up, To sally.
--------	--------	---------	-----------------------------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Salgo	Sayo	Salgo or Saglio	I go out
sales, reg.	sahes, reg.	sali	thou goest out sale, reg.	sahe, reg.	sale	he goes out salimos, reg.	sahimos, reg.	salghiamo or sagliamo	we go out salis, reg.	sahis, reg.	salite	ye go out
salen, reg.	sahem, reg.	salgono or sagliono.	they go out.

Future Tense.

Saldré	Regular.	Regular.	I shall go out, &c.
saldras, &c.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
IMPERATIVE MOOD.
Sal	Salie, reg.	Sali	Go thou out
salga	saya	salga or saglia	let him go out salgamos	sahamos, reg.	sagliamo	let us go out salid, reg.	sahi, reg.	salite, reg.	go ye out salgan.	sayaõ.	salgano.	let them go out.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Salga	Saya	Salga or Saglia	I may go out
salgas	sayas	salga	thou, &c.
salga	saya	salga	he, &c.
salgamos	sayamos	salghiamo	we, &c.
salgais	sayais	salghiate or sagliate	ye, &c.
salgan.	sayaõ.	salgano.	they, &c.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Saldria	Regular.	Regular.	I might, &c. go saldrias, &c.			out.

N.B. Salire, in Italian, is To go up,—To go out is Uscire.

The conjugation of the former is given here, as it seems to be the same verb as the Spanish and Portuguese Salir and Sahir, although used in a slightly different signification. Cahir, To fall, in the Portuguese is conjugated as Sahir.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
INFINITIVE MOOD.
Ir*.	Ir*.	Ire*.	To go.
Participle.
Ido, reg.	Ido, reg.	Ito.	Gone.

* It is singular that this verb should be so irregular in so many languages: it seems in all to be rather a mixture of several verbs

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
----------	-------------	----------	----------

Gerund.

Yendo.	Indo, reg.	Endo, not used.	Going.
---------------	-------------------	------------------------	--------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Voy	Vou	Not in use.	I go vas	vas		thou goest
va	vay		he goes
vamos	vamos		we go
vais	ides		ye go
van.	vaõ.		they go.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Iba	Hia	Not used.	I was going ibas	hias	Not used.	thou wast going iba	hia	iva	he was going ibamos	hiamos	Not used.	we were going ibais	hieis	Not used.	ye were going
iban.	hiaõ.	ivano or ivan.	they were going.

than the conjugation of one verb : thus, in the Spanish and Portuguese, the preterperfect tense indicative mood, and preterimperfect and future tenses subjunctive mood, are evidently the same as those tenses of the verb Ser; and it may be doubted if the present tenses indicative, imperative, and subjunctive moods are derived from Ir. The Italian verb is defective in all these tenses; but it is singular that the three present tenses of Andare, To go, have vado or vo, vai, va, vanno: va, vada, vadano, vadino: vada or vadi, vadano or vadino: which is surely the same verb as that in those tenses of Ir, in the Spanish and Portuguese languages, or rather is derived from the same verb in some parent language. There is a similar irregularity in the French language, where you find Je vais, tu vas, il va, &c. from Aller, To go.

SPANISH. PORTUGUESE. ITALIAN. ENGLISH.

Preterperfect Tense.

Fuí	Fui	Not in use.	I went fuiste	foste		thou wentest
fué	foi		he went fuímos	fomos		we went fuísteis	fostes		ye went fuéron.	foraõ.		they went.

Future Tense.

Iré	Irei	Irò	I shall go
irés	iras	irai	thou wilt go,
&c. reg.	&c. reg.	&c. reg.	&c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Ve	Vai	Not in use.	Go thou
vaya	va	Not in use.	let him go
vamos	vamos	Not in use.	let us go or vayamos
id, reg.	ide	ite	go ye
vayan.	vaõ.	Not used.	let them go.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Vaya	Va	Not used.	I may go
vayas	vas		thou mayst go
vaya	va		he may go
vayamos	vamos		we may go
vayais	vades		ye may go
vayan.	vaõ.		they may go,

Preterimperfect Tense.

Fuera or Fuese	Fora or Fosse	Not used.	I might, &c. go
fueras or fueses	foras or fosses		thou, &c.
fuera or fuese	fora or fosse		he, &c.
fuéramos	foramos		we, &c.
or fuésemos	or fossemos
fuérais or fuéscis	foreis or fosseis		ye, &c.
fueran or fuesen.	foraõ or fossem.		they, &c.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Preterimperfect conditional Tense.
Iria &c. reg.	Iria &c. reg.	Not used.	I should, &c. go.

Future Tense.

Fuere	For	None.	I may or shall go fueres	fores		thou mayst or wilt, &c.
fuere	for		he may or will, &c.
fuéremos	formos		we may or shall, &c.
fuéreis	fordes		ye may or will, &c.
fueren.	forem.		they may or will, &c.

SPANISH.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
----------	----------	----------

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Decir.	Dire.	To say.
--------	-------	---------

The Portuguese verb is Dizer, which has been already conjugated among the Irregular Verbs of the second conjugation, to which conjugation also the Italian verb Dire more properly belongs, as its infinitive mood is contracted from Dicere, and might therefore be called irregular.

Participle.

Dicho.	Detto.	Said.
--------	--------	-------

Gerund.

Diciendo.	Dicendo*.	Saying.
-----------	-----------	---------

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Digo	Dico*	I say
dices	dici*	thou sayest
dice	dice*	he says
decimos, reg.	diciamo*	we say decis, reg.	dite	ye say
dicen.	dicono*.	they say.

* Regular according to the second conjugation.

SPANISH.

ITALIAN.

ENGLISH.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Decía	Dicevo	I was saying
&c. reg.	dicevi	thou wast saying diceva	he was saying
	dicevamo	we were saying dicevate	ye were saying
	dicevano*.	they were saying.

Preterperfect Tense.

Dixé	Dissi	I said
dixiste	dicesti*	thou saidest
dixó	disse	he said
diximos	dicemmo*	we said
dixísteis	diceste*	ye said
dixéron.	dissero.	they said.

Future Tense.

Diré	Dirò	I shall say
dirás	&c. Regular according	thou wilt say dirá	to this conjugation.	he will say dirémos		we shall say
diréis		ye will say
dirán.		they will say.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Di	Di †	Say thou
diga	dica*	let him say
digamos	diciamo*	let us say decid, reg.	dite	say ye
digan.	dicano*	let them say.

* Regular according to the second conjugation.

† Regular according to this conjugation.

SPANISH.

ITALIAN.

ENGLISH.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Diga	Dica	I may say
digas	dica	thou mayst say
diga	dica	he may say
digamos	diciamo	we may say
digais	diciate	ye may say
digan.	dicano*.	they may say.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Dixera or Dixese	Dicessi	I might, &c. say
dixeras or dixeses	dicessi	thou, &c.
dixera or dixese	dicesse	he, &c.
dixéramos	dicessimo	we, &c.
or dixésemos
dixérais or dixéseis	diceste	ye, &c.
dixeran or dixesen.	dicessero*.	they, &c.

Preterimperfect conditional Tense.

Diria	Direi	I would, &c. say
dirias	diresti	thou, &c.
diria	direbbe	he, &c.
diríamos	diremmo	we, &c.
diríais	diresté	ye, &c.
dirían.	direbbero†.	they, &c.

Future Tense.

Dixere	None.	I may or shall say
dixeres		thou may or will, &c.
dixere		he may or will, &c.
dixéremos		we may or shall, &c.
dixéreis		ye may or will, &c.
dixerén.		they may or will, &c.

The compounds of Decir, in the Spanish, follow its conjugation, except Contradecir, To contradict, and Des-

* Regular according to the second conjugation.

† Regular according to this conjugation.

decir, To disown; which have in the imperative mood contradice tu and desdice tu: also, Bendecir, To bless, has bendecido and bendito in the participle, bendeciré, bendecirás, &c. in the future tense indicative mood, and bendice tu in the imperative mood. Maldecir, To curse, follows the conjugation of bendecir. The other tenses of all these verbs are like those in decir.

Asir, To seize, irregular only in three present tenses.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Asgo, ases, reg. asc, reg.; asimos, reg. asis, reg. asen, reg. I seize, &c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Ase, reg. asga, asgamos; asid, reg. asgan. Seize, &c.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Asga, asgas, asga; asgamos, asgais, asgan. I may seize, &c.

The foregoing with their compounds are all the irregular verbs of the Third Conjugation in the Spanish language. There are yet a few irregulars to be pointed out in the Portuguese; as Seguir, To follow, changes the e into i and loses the u in those tenses and persons in which this latter letter would otherwise be followed by o or a, as in the

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Sigo, sigues, &c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Segue tu, reg. siga elle, sigamos, seguí, reg. sigaõ.

and in the

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Que eu siga, tu sigas, &c.

and so in its compounds ; and also in Distinguir, To distinguish ; Extinguir, To extinguish, &c.

Fugir, To fly away, is irregular in the three presents, as

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Fujo, foges, foge ; fugimos, fugis, fogem.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Foge, fuja, fujaamos ; fugi, fujaõ.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Fuja, fujas, fuja ; fujaamos, fujaõ.

Surgir, To arrive, has the same irregularity, and also makes Surto in the participle.

Subir, Cubrir, and compounds ; acudir, bullir, sumir, consumir, construir, tussir, &c. have the same irregularity as to the letter u.

Sortir, To furnish, changes the o into u when the t is followed by a or o.

Parir, To bring forth, has an i after the a of the first syllable when the r is followed by o or a, that is, in the three present tenses ; as,

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Pairo, pares, &c.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Pare tu, paira; pairamos, pari, pairaõ.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Paira, pairas, &c. &c.

Ordir, To warp in a loom, changes the o into u in those persons where the or would otherwise be followed by da, do, de.

Carpir, To weep, is only defective, and is but in use in those tenses where the p is followed by i.

These are all the Portuguese irregular verbs in this conjugation.

In the Italian, besides the five that have already been given, viz. Dire, Salire, Udire, Venire, and Ire, there are several others, whose principal irregularity is in the three present tenses, and for the greater part of them one rule will serve.

ITALIAN.

Morire.

ENGLISH.

To die.

Participle.

Morto.

Dead.

Compound tenses are formed with Essere.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Moro,	mori,	more;	moriamo,	morite,	morono,
or			or		or
Muojò,			muojamo,		muojono.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Mori,	mora;		moriamo,	morite,	morano,
or			or		or
muoja;			muojamo,		muojano.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Mora,	mora,	mora;	moriamo,	moriate,	morano,
or					or
Muoja,					muojano.

ITALIAN.

ENGLISH.

Uscire.

To go out.

Compound tenses with Essere.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Esco, esci, esce; usciamo, uscite, escono.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Esci, esca; usciamo, uscite, escano.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Esca, esca, esca; usciamo, usciate, escano.

ITALIAN.

ENGLISH.

Gire,

To go,

has only the following in use.

Participle.

Gito.

Gone.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

— — — — Gite. You go, &c.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Givo, givi, giva or gia; givamo, givate, givano.

Preterperfect Tense.

— Gisti, gî or giù; gimmo, giste, girono.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

— — — — Gite. Go ye.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Preterimperfect Tense.

Gissi, gissi, gisse; gissimo, giste, gissero.

Aprire, To open, besides the regular preterperfect tenses has also Apersi,—and Coprire, To cover, has in the preterperfect tense Coprj and Copersi. Participle—Coperto.

The regular verbs of this conjugation are,

Aprire, to open; *Bollire, to boil; *Consentire, to consent; *Convertire, to convert; Coprire, to cover; Cucire, to sow; Dormire, to sleep; Fuggire, to fly; *Mentire, to lie; *Partire, to depart; Pentirsi, to repent; Seguire, to follow; Sentire, to hear; Servire, to serve; Sortire, to go out; *Soffrire, to suffer. Participle—Sofferto; Vestire, to dress.

All the other verbs in ire (except the irregulars already given) are irregular in the present tenses, forming the indicative mood present tense in isco, as in

ITALIAN.

ENGLISH.

Capire.

To comprehend.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Capisco, capisci, capisce; capiamo, reg. capite, reg. capiscono.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Capisci, capisca; capiamo, capite, capiscano.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Present Tense.

Capisca, capisca, capisca; capiamo, capiate, capiscano.

* These also are irregular.

- The other tenses are regular, except in
- Apparire*, To appear, which has its preterperfect Apparj and Apparsi. Participle—Apparso.
- Comparire*, To appear. Preterperfect—Comparj and Comparsi. Participle—Comparso.
- Offerire*, To offer. Preterperfect—Offerj and Offersi. Participle—Offerto.
- Proferire*, To pronounce. Preterperfect—Proferj and Profersi. Participle—Proferto.
- Soffrire, To suffer. Indicative present—Soffro and Soffrisco. Preterperfect—Soffri and Soffersi. Participle—Sofferto.
- Seppellire*, To hide. Preterperfect—Seppelj. Participle—Sepolto and Seppelito.
- Consentire, *Mentire, *Partire, besides their regular conjugation take also that of isco in the present tenses.
- Bollire and Convertire take also isco in the first person of the indicative mood present tense.

IMPERSONAL VERBS.

Verbs that are from custom, or the peculiar signification they are meant to convey, chiefly or only used in the third person, without any immediate nominative case, (except in the English language, where the pronoun It is used) are termed impersonal. With the exception just noted for the English language, their construction appears to be similar in the four languages. The following are examples of some :

* Irregular.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Hielo	Gea	Gela	It freezes.
Graniza	Cahe pedra	Grandina	It hails.
Llueva	Chove	Piove	It rains.
Llovizna	Chovizca	Pioviggina	It mizzles.
Nieva	Neva	Nevica	It snows.
Truena	Troveja	Truona	It thunders.
Agrada*	Agrada	Aggrada	It pleases.
Basta*	Basta	Basta	It is sufficient.
Convien*	Convem	Convene	It is convenient.
Duele*	Doe	Duole	It pains.
Importa*	Importa	Importa	It concerns.
Parece*	Parece	Pare	It appears.
Sucede*	Succede	Succede	It happens.

It is obvious that several of the above require a pronoun either before or after ; as, Me agrada, agrada me, m'aggrada, It pleases me ; and as the nominative case is evidently that which pleases, or which is sufficient, convenient, pains, &c. there seems to be an impropriety in classing such verbs among the Impersonals, as is usually done by grammarians.

After this plan every verb might be made impersonal ; and indeed there is a peculiarity in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages, in one construction of the verbs, by which they become as it were impersonals, c.p. gr.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Se dice	Se diz or dizse	Si dice or dicesi	It is said.
Se sabe	Se sabe or sabese	Si sa or sasi	It is known.

* Irregular.

And in like manner all verbs, either neuter or active, may be rendered, and the passive sense is frequently formed by this construction ; as,

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.
Se ve un hombre	Se ve hum homem	Si vede un uomo.
Se ven hombres	Vem se homens	Si vedono uomini.
They see a man, they see men ; or A man is seen, men are seen*.

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS ON THE VERB.

The conjugation of the verb, that is, the variation of its signification by distinct terminations in its moods, tenses, numbers, and persons, in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages, is very different from that in the English language ; its resemblance to the Latin will be immediately perceived by all who are acquainted with that language, and by them the proper way of using the two past tenses in the indicative mood will be readily ascertained.

The subjunctive mood in English is now scarcely ever used ; whilst in the Spanish and Portuguese there are four, if not five, and in the Italian three, distinct tenses in that mood.

The formation of the compound tenses of the different moods is indeed nearly the same in each language, except that the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian, having more simple tenses, have consequently a greater combination of compound tenses.

* See also the remarks on this idiom, under the head of Verbs Passive, p. 67.

The Moods are four,—viz. The Infinitive, (under which are included the Participle and Gerund,) the Indicative, the Imperative, and the Subjunctive.

THE INFINITIVE MOOD.

In English this mood is always expressed by the preposition To, prefixed to the verb; in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian, the termination sufficiently designates the mood, and it is used with and without the preposition, according to the idiom of the respective language. The preposition To is rendered also by De, a, para,—in the Spanish.

De, a, para,—in the Portuguese.

Di, a, per,—in the Italian.

The last, para, per, are used when to in the English signifies for or in order to. There are also other prepositions which require after them the infinitive mood of the verb, governing it, as it were, as they govern substantives. Indeed this mood, as it is used in the idiom of the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages, is frequently best rendered in English by a substantive, or the gerund or participle present (as it is usually termed); as in the instances where this mood takes the definite article—el, Span., o, Portug., il, lo, Ital.

Spanish—El decir y el hacer son ^{dos} cosas.

Portuguese—O dizer e o fazer são duas cousas.

Italian—Il dire e 'l fare sono due cose.

English—To say and to do or Saying and doing } are two things.

The following prepositions require the infinitive mood after them.

Spanish—A, con, de, en, para, por, sin, sobre, tras, hasta.

Portuguese—A, con, de, em, para, por, sem, depois de, ate.

Italian—A, con, di, da, per, senza.

When the Portuguese use the infinitive mood with a third person in the plural number, they add em to it, and it is generally preceded by por or para, ex. gr. Elles foraõ enforcados por furtarem, they were hanged for robbing; Para poderem dizer, that they may be able to say, or in order for them to be able to say. This augmentation of the infinitive mood is peculiar to the Portuguese, not extending to the Spanish and Italian.

Some examples of the Infinitive Mood :

Spanish—Voy a pasear, a estudiar, a jugar.

Portuguese—Vou a passear, a estudar, a jugar.

Italian—Vo a fare una passeggiata, a studiare, a giocare.

English—I go a walking or to walk, to study, to play.

S. De decir a hacer hay mucha distancia.

P. De dizer a fazer ha muita distancia.

I. Da dire a fare ha molta distanza.

E. From saying to doing there is a great distance.

S. A saber yo eso. A decir verdad.

P. A saber eu isso. A dizer a verdade.

I. A dire la verità.

E. If I had known this. To say the truth.

- S.* Vengo a ver. Vengo de ver.
P. Venho a ver. Venho de ver.
I. Vengo a vedere. Vengo di vedere.
E. I come to see. I come from seeing, or I have just seen.

- S.* Con estudiar se alcanza, &c.
P. Con estudar se alcança, &c.
I. Con istudiare s' ottiene, &c.
E. By studying you obtain, &c.

- S.* Dia de sembrar. Bueno de comer.
P. Dia de semear. Bom de comer.
I. Dì da seminare. Buono di mangiare.
E. { A day to sow or Good to be eaten, or in com- { fit for sowing, mon phrase Good to eat.
 { or Day of sowing.

- S.* Se ocupa en leer. No hay dificultad en decir.
P. Se ocupa em ler. Naõ ha difficuldade em dizer.
I. S' occupa nel leggere. Non ha difficultà nel dicere.
E. He occupies himself There is no difficulty in sayin reading. ing.

- S.* Trabajo ahora para descansar luego.
P. Trabalho agora para descansar logo.
I. Lavoro ora per riposare dopo.
E. I work now to rest afterwards.

- S.* Para ser principiante, no hace mal.
P. Para ser principiante, naõ faz mal.
I. Per essere principiante, non fa male.
E. For a beginner, he does not do ill.

S. Estoy para partir.

P. Estou para partir.

I. Sto per partire.

E. I am about to depart.

S. Estudio por saber por dar gusto a mi padre.

P. Estudo por saber por dar gosto a meu pay.

I. Studio per sapere per dar gusto a mio padre.

E. I study to learn to give pleasure to my father.

S. La casa està por acabar, por barrer.

P. A casa està por acabar, por varrer.

I. La casa stà per finire, per iscopare.

E. The house wants finishing, is to be swept, or is yet to be finished, or wants sweeping.

S. Està sin comer.

P. Està sem comer. Sem jantar.

I. Stà senza desinare.

E. He is without his dinner. He has not dined.

S. Sobre ser or Tras ser.

P. Alem de ser.

I. Sopra d' essere.

E. Besides being.

The Participle and Gerund.

The Participle is used in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages, as in the English. It differs however in being a declinable word, having masculine and feminine, singular and plural terminations, which terminations are formed according to the rules laid down for the formation of the feminine and plural terminations of the adjectives.

The participle is undeclinable after the auxiliaries Haber, Tener, Ter, Avere, in forming the compound tenses of the verb; but after the verb Ser, Ser, Essere, in the passive voice, and when used adjectively, it agrees with its noun or pronoun in gender and number, ex. gr.:

Spanish—

El ha amado.	Ella ha amado.	Ellos han amado.
--------------	----------------	------------------

Portuguese—

Elle tem amado.	Ella tem amado.	Elles tem amado.
-----------------	-----------------	------------------

Italian—

Egli ha amato.	Ella ha amato.	Eglio hanno amato.
----------------	----------------	--------------------

English—

He has loved.	She has loved.	They have loved.
---------------	----------------	------------------

Spanish—

El es amado.	Ella es amada.	Ellos son amados.
		Ellas son amadas.

Portuguese—

Elle he amado.	Ella he amada.	Elles saõ amados.
		Ellas saõ amadas.

Italian—

Egli è amato.	Ella è amata.	Eglio sono amati.
		Elleno sono amate.

English—

He is loved.	She is loved.	They are loved.
--------------	---------------	-----------------

The participle of the former of these examples is commonly called the active, and of the latter the passive participle. In examples similar to the following, it has been called an adjective, and in fact does not differ essentially, if at all, from one.

Spanish—

Hombre amado. Muger amada. Hombres amados. Mugerres amadas.

Portuguese—

Homen amado. Molher amada. Homens amados. Molheres amadas.

Italian—

Uomo amato. Donna amata. Uomini amati. Donne amate.

English—

Man loved	Woman loved	Men loved	Women loved or beloved.	or beloved.	or beloved.	or beloved.

The participle and past time of the indicative mood of the regular verbs, in the English language, are alike ; but in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages they are distinct words, and cannot be mistaken for each other.

In using the participle absolutely, as it is termed, the idiom of the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian, differs from that of the English language, as to express Having done, Having said, Being done, &c., the words Having and Being are omitted, e.v. gr. :

Spanish—	Hecho eso.	Dicho eso.
Portuguese—	Feito isso.	Ditto isso.
Italian—	Fatto questo.	Detto questo.
English—	Having done this.	Having said this.
	or This being done.	or This being said.

It would not have been improper to have rendered these phrases, as in the English, with the gerund, but it is more received to use them as in the above examples.

The Gerund, or, as it is usually called by English grammarians, the present participle, is used for the most part as in the English. Where it is necessary to render the English termination in ing, by the infinitive mood in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian, has been already pointed out in the examples of the government of the infinitive mood by the prepositions. The gerund is indeclinable. The participle present, properly so called, of the Spanish, terminating in ante and ente, has been omitted in the conjugations of the verbs, as but few of them admit of it, its use being obsolete. It was formerly more used; but the gerund now supplies its place, and the words in ante and ente, formed or derived from verbs, are now rather used as substantives or adjectives, ex. gr.:

Amante, loving, that is, he who loves, or a lover.

Obediente, obeying, or obedient to.

Pertiniciente, belonging to, &c.

THE INDICATIVE MOOD.

This mood is used when the existence or action of persons or things is simply and absolutely declared or indicated. The conjugation of the verbs in both the indicative and subjunctive moods, in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages, is very different from that in the English, there being in the latter but two simple tenses in the indicative mood,—the present and the past; as, I am, I was, I love, I loved; whereas in the former there are four simple tenses, viz. one present, two past, and one future tense; as,

	SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.
Present	{ Soy, Amo,	sou, amo,	sono. amo.
Past {	Preterimperfect { Era, Amaba,	era, amava,	ero. amavo.
	Preterperfect { Fui, Amé,	fui, amei,	fui. amai.
Future	{ Seré, Amaré,	serei, amarei,	sarò. amerò.

Of these, the present and future are used precisely as those tenses are in the English (except that, in English, the future is not expressed by a simple tense, but by the means of the verbs shall or will prefixed to the infinitive mood without the preposition to).

The preterimperfect tense answers nearly in point of time to what is indicated by the gerund and the past tense of the verb To be,—was,—as I was loving, that is, I loved when such and such things happened; it expresses the time of an action which comes to pass during the time of another action which has quite passed.

The preterperfect tense is used to denote the time of an action completely gone by, and where the time is definitely marked. The use of the simple tenses being known, that of the compound ones is easy.

The present tense indicative mood of the English verb To know, after a negation, as Not that I know, is rendered in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian, (as in the French,) by the present tense subjunctive mood, ex. gr.

Spanish—No que yo sepa.

Portuguese—Não que eu saiba.

Italian—No che io sappia.

In the Italian this rule extends to all cases where there are two verbs, the former preceded by non and the second by che: the second verb must be in the subjunctive mood; as, Non sapevo che amaste, I did not know that you loved; Non credo che studj, I do not believe that he studies.

THE IMPERATIVE MOOD

Is used as in the English; except in the Italian there is this peculiarity, that in forbidding an inferior, or one to whom they say Tu and not Vossignoria, they use the infinitive mood and not the imperative; as Non far questo, Do not do that; Non dir niente, Say thou nothing; Non ti fermare, Don't stay.

THE SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

The English language can hardly be said to possess a subjunctive mood, as even the termination indicating future contingency, If I be, If he love, &c. is now becoming obsolete. However, in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian, this mood has even more terminations or tenses than the indicative mood, and is used when the contingency, possibility, liberty, wish, fear, or doubt of the existence or of the occurrence of an event is meant to be denoted. As the events pointed out by this mood depend on some foregoing verb expressed or understood, they are never spoken of in a sense perfectly past; but even the preterite tenses of this mood seem to indicate future time.

The English, to express the various senses and meanings of this mood, are obliged to use the auxiliaries of their language, may and can, with the past tenses might, could, and likewise should and would, except sometimes in the present tense, after the conjunctions if, that, &c. ex. gr. if he comes, that he goes, and in the future tense, as if he come, if he go. But it is necessary to remark that may, can, will, might, could, should, would, are sometimes used as auxiliary verbs, indicating only a mood or tense of another verb, and at other times retain their original signification and are themselves perfect verbs; in which latter case they must be rendered in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian, by the corresponding verbs of those languages; ex. gr.

When Will does not imply futurity, but To will, to be willing, &c., it must be rendered by

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.
Querer.	Querer.	Volere.

Can and may, not denoting possibility, but absolute power, or To be able, by Poder.	Poder.	Potere.

--------	--------	---------

Should, though originally the past time of shall, is now used in English in the present tense, denoting obligation, and when so used must be rendered by Deber.	Dever.	Dovere.

--------	--------	---------

Would, could, should, and might, are the past tenses of the verbs will, can, shall, and may, and when used as preterite tenses in the above senses must be rendered by the preterite tenses of the verbs corresponding to them in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian, as quoted above.

The Spanish and Portuguese differ from the Italian in having a future tense in the subjunctive mood, which tense is used in speaking of any future contingent event. The Italians, wanting a tense to distinguish future from present contingency, use the present tense subjunctive mood in both cases, leaving the precise time to be gathered from the context, or they make use of the future tense of the indicative mood after the conjunction si, if.

It has been just observed that the subjunctive mood requires before it in the sentence some other verb, either expressed or understood: it is therefore necessary to remark that the meaning of the first verb is frequently fully expressed by means of conjunctions, these being but contractions of the imperative mood of some old verb: consequently most conjunctions require the verb following them to be in the subjunctive mood, although this depends entirely on whether a positive or contingent event is spoken of: as, ex. gr.

If I had money, I did not use it, and

If I had money, I would build a house. The former example is of a past and certain event, and therefore will be in the indicative mood; but the latter is contingent, and must be in the subjunctive; as

First,

Spanish—Si tenia dinero, no le gastaba.

Portuguese—Si tinha dinheiro, não o gastava.

Italian—Si tenevo danaro, non me lo servivo.

Second,

Spanish—Si $\left\{ \begin{array}{c} \text{tuviese} \\ \text{or} \\ \text{tuviera} \end{array} \right\}$ dinero, haria fabricar una casa.

Portug.—Si $\left\{ \begin{array}{c} \text{tivesse} \\ \text{or} \\ \text{tivera} \end{array} \right\}$ dinheiro, faria fabricar huma casa.

Italian—Si tenesse danaro, farei fabbricare una casa.

The Spanish and Portuguese languages differ also from the Italian in having three terminations in the imperfect tenses of this mood, the last having but two.

The grammarians of the Spanish Royal Academy have ranged the three terminations under one head, viz. the imperfect preterite. The terminations in ria, Spanish and Portuguese, and rei, Italian, in this work, are classed under the title of preterimperfect conditional, as in similarity of termination and in use they correspond to the conditional tense of the French grammarians, and are for the most part used to denote or affirm the existence or occurrence of any thing, on condition of some other event taking place. The terminations in the Spanish of	ase,	iese,

Portuguese	asse,	esse,	isse,
Italian	assi,	essi,	issi, answer also in like manner to the preterite subjunctive of the French grammarians in sse, and seem to be the regular preterite tense of the subjunctive mood. These terminations of (Sp.) ria, (P.) ria, (I.) rei;—and of (Sp.) ase, iese; (P.) asse, esse, isse; (I.) assi, essi, issi; cannot be used indifferently one for the other: but this is not the case with the terminations in the Spanish of ara, iera; and in the Portuguese of ara, era, and ira, to which the Italian has not correspondent terminations; for it seems that this termination may be used without affecting the sense for either the one in ase, iese, &c., or the other in aria, eria, &c. Thus, you may say in Spanish—Si yo amara or amase las riquezas, procurara or procuraria adquirirlas.

Portug.—Si eu amara or amasse as riquezas, procurara or procuraria adquirirlas.

Italian—Si io amassi le ricchezze, procurerei acquistarle.

English—If I loved or should love riches, I would endeavour to acquire them.

You cannot however say

Si yo amaria las riquezas, procurase adquirirlas.

&c. &c.

You may say, in Spanish—Si leyeras or leyese buenos libros, serias or fueras mas instruido.

Portug.—Si leras or lesse bomos livros, serias or foras mais instruido.

Italian—Si leggessi buoni libri, saresti più istruito.

English—If you read or should read good books, you would be more informed.

But you cannot say

Si leerias buenos libros, fueses mas instruido.

From the foregoing examples it is evident that the termination in ra is equivalent to the two other terminations in se and ria: but these latter are not equivalent to each other, nor can they be used indifferently one for the other, being always used in a different sense; the former in se denoting the condition, and the latter in ria the consequence of that condition, ex. gr.

Spanish—Yo amaria las riquezas, si pudiesen saciar mis deseos.

Portug.—Eu amaria as riquezas, si pudessem saciar os meus desejos.

Italian—Io amarei le ricchezze, si potrebbero saziare i miei disj.

English—I would love riches, if they could } satiate my or should or were able to } desires.

In this example, satisfying the desires is the condition on which loving riches is to be the consequence, and this example will also serve to exemplify the use of could as a perfect verb; the preterimperfect tense subjunctive mood of the verb (Sp.) poder, (P.) poder, (I.) potere, being used with the infinitive mood of the verb (Sp.) saciar, (P.) saciar, (I.) saziare, and not the preterimperfect subjunctive of this latter verb.

The following rules are laid down by the Royal Spanish Academy for using the terminations of the preterite tenses subjunctive mood.

When the sentence in which this tense must be used begins without a conditional conjunction, you must use the terminations ra or ria; as Spanish—Fortuna fuera or seria que lloviese.

Portug.—Fortuna fora or seria que chovesse.

Italian—Fortuna fosse che pioverebbe.

English—It would be fortunate that or if it should rain.

Spanish—Yo hiciera or haria que obedeciesen.

Portug.—Eu fizera or faria que obedecessen.

Italian—Io farei che obbedissero.

English—I would make or cause that they should obey, or rather, I would make them obey.

In these examples the termination in ese must be used in the second member of the sentence.

When the sentence begins with a conditional conjunction, as Spanish— Si, sino, aunque, bienque, &c.

Portug.—Si, senaõ, aindaque, &c.

Italian— Si, senon, benche, &c.

or by an interjection signifying wish or desire, you must use the terminations ra or se; as Spanish— Si yo fuera or fuese feliz al juego, jugaria.

Portug.—Se eu fora or fosse feliz no jogo, jugaria.

Italian— Si io fossi avventurato al giuoco, giocarei.

English—If I were fortunate at play, I would play.

Spanish—; Oxalá fuera or fuese cierto !

Portug.—Oxala fora or fosse certo !

Italian— Volesse Dio fosse certo !

English—O that it were certain or true !

The termination ria must be used when there is a second part in the sentence necessary to complete the sense, as in the first example.

Si in a sentence ought to be followed by the termination ria; as Spanish— Le pregunté, si escribiria ?

Portug.—Lhe perguntei, si escreveria ?

Italian— Gli domandai, se scriverebbe ?

English— I asked him, if he would write ?

When the preterite tense of the subjunctive mood has for its antecedent any of the past tenses indicative mood of the verbs signifying to speak or to think, any of the three terminations can be used; as S. Decia or pensaba	} que	{	vinieras.

Dixó or pensó			vendrias.
Habia dicho or pensado			vinieses.
P. Dizia or pensava	} que	{	vieras.
Disse or pensou			viesses.
Tinha ditto or pensado			virias.
I. Diceva or pensava	} che	{	venisse.
Disse or pensò
Aveva detto or pensato			verrebbe.
E. He was saying or thinking	} that	{	you might or
He said or thought			could come.
He had said or thought			you would come.

If the preterite of the indicative is of a verb signifying to wish or desire, you ought to use the termination in ra or se of the imperfect of the subjunctive, and not the termination in ria; as

S. Queria	} que	{	viniera
Quiso			or
Ha querido			viniese.
P. Queria	} que	{	viera
Quiz			or
Tem querido			viesses.
I. Voleva	} che		venissi.
Volle
Ha voluto
E. He was wishing	} that he might come.
He wished
He has wished

The rules laid down by the Spanish Academy will serve also for the Portuguese language; and although they cannot be altogether applied to the Italian, as it has not a termination corresponding to the one in ra, yet as far as respects the different use of the two imperfect tenses of the subjunctive mood the preceding rules and examples will serve. The idioms of the Portuguese and Italian languages differ indeed a little, in the use of the tenses of the subjunctive mood, from the Spanish idiom; as, for example; although or though, in the Portuguese, may be rendered by ainda que, or by naõ obstante; the former takes either the indicative or subjunctive mood: ex. gr.

Ainda que seja homem honrado.

Although he is an honest man.

Ainda que elle faz aquillo.

Though he does that.

but naõ obstante requires the infinitive mood after it, ex. gr.

Naõ obstante ser elle homem honrado.

Though he is an honest man.

Naõ obstante fazer elle isto.

Though he does this.

and in the Italian, though and although may be expressed by benche or sebben; when the former is used you must put the subjunctive mood after it, ex. gr.

Benche sia galant' uomo.

Though he is an honest man.

Benche faccia questo.

Though he does that.

but sebben requires the indicative mood, ex. gr.

Sebben è galant' uomo.

Though he is an honest man.

Sebben fa questo.

Though he does that.

THE ADVERBS.

There does not appear to be any material difference in the mode of using this part of speech in the Spanish, Portuguese, Italian, and English languages.

The termination ly, the addition of which renders so many adjectives in English adverbs, has its equivalent in the termination mente in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages, ev. gr.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Felizmente	Felicemente	Felicemente	Happily.
Abundantemente	Abundantemente	Abbondantemente	Abundantly.
Constantemente	Constantemente	Costantemente	Constantly.
Facilmente	Facilmente	Facilmente	Easily.
Primeramente*	Primeiramente*	Primieramente*	Firstly*.

It is a solecism in English to use two negatives: but it is not so in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages; for to express I desire nothing, He knows no one, you must say, in the Spanish—No quiero nada. No sabe nadie.

Portug.—Naõ quero nada. Naõ sabe ninguem.

Italian—Non desidero niente. Non sa nessuno.

However, by turning the phrase a little, the same meaning can be grammatically expressed in these languages by one negative, ev. gr.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.
Nada quiero.	Nada quero.	Niente desidero.

* Note, Thirdly, Fourthly, &c. are not however expressed by the termination in mente, but are rendered thus:

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.
En tercero lugar.	Em terceiro lugar.	In terzo luogo, &c.

There is a singular use of the negation no in the Spanish language, by which it serves to affirm more strongly and not to deny ; as, Mejor es el trabajo que no la ociosidad, Labour is better than idleness : the no may however in such instances be omitted without a solecism or alteration of the sense.

It is also singular that in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages, never and ever are expressed by the same word : viz.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.
Jamas,	Nunca,	Mai;

of which you must gather the precise meaning from the context of the sentence they are used in.

In asking a question, the sentence in the Spanish and Portuguese is always, where the sense will admit of it, put without a negative ; in English it is usual to say Do you not choose any more ? Shall I not help you ? Will you have nothing else ? but it is better to render such phrases in the

Spanish by	Quiere vm. mas ?
	Quiere vm. que le sirva ?
	Quiere vm. alguna cosa mas ?
Portuguese	Quer vm. mais ?
	Quer vm. que lhe sirva ?
	Quer vm. mais alguma cosa ?

In the Italian, as in the English, the question may be asked either way ; as, Non vuol lei piu ? or Vuol lei piu ? &c.

In expressing yes and no, after a verb, the Spanish and Portuguese place que before the si and no in the Spanish, sin and naō in the Portuguese; and the Italians place di before si and no.

Spanish—

Creo que si. Creo que no. Digo que si. Digo que no.

Portuguese—

Creyo que sim. Creyo que naō. Digo que sim. Digo que naō.

Italian—

Credo di si. Credo di no. Dico di si. Dico di no.

English—

I believe yes. I believe not or no. I say yes. I say not or no.

THE PREPOSITIONS.

There is perhaps no part of the idioms of different languages more difficult to be acquired than the various significations of the words classed by grammarians under the head of Prepositions. In every language they have peculiar meanings, varying according to their combination with other words, or the structure of the sentence, to which it is necessary to have regard in translating from one language into another; as the same word or preposition, in the English, when required to be given in any other language, cannot always be rendered by the same translation, but will have to be rendered by different words or prepositions according to the idiom of the language. It is impossible to lay down any general rules for the translation of prepositions: a good dictionary and an attention to the idiom of the language are the best guides. With respect to the grammatical construction of the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages, as far as regards this part of speech, it does not differ much from that of the English. The prepositions which coalesce with the definite article, forming one word and marking its different cases, have been already pointed out. In other respects these languages resemble the English. The substantive and adjective remaining unchanged in termination can hardly be said to be governed by any particular prepositions in any case. There are some prepositions, however, which require after them, when used in certain significations, other prepositions, viz. de, da, di, or a, da, ad, and they are therefore said to govern the genitive and dative cases, ex. gr.

SPANISH.	PORTUGUESE.	ITALIAN.	ENGLISH.
Antes del dia.	Antes do dia.	Avanti del di.	Before daybreak.
Dentro de la casa.	Dentro da casa.	Dentro alla casa.	Within the house.
Depues de cenar.	Depois de cea.	Dopo cena.	After supper.
Fuera de la casa.	Fora da casa.	Fuori della casa.	Without the house.
Ademas del dinero.	Alem do d'neiro.	Oltre 'l danaro.	Besides the money.
Cerca de la puerta.	Perto da porta.	Vicino or presso alla porta. -della porta. -la porta.	} Near the door.
Detras del palacio.	Detraz do palacio.	Dietro al or Dietro 'l palazzo.
Encima de la cama.	Encima da cama.	Sopra del letto.	Upon the bed.
Debaxo de la mesa.	Debaxo da mesa.	Sotto la tavola or Sotto della tavola.	} Under the table.
&c.	&c.	&c.

THE CONJUNCTIONS.

The grammatical construction of the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages, in the use of the conjunctions, agreeing with that of the English language, it is unnecessary to say anything further upon it, except to observe that the only difference, and which rather respects the verb than the conjunction, is, that after a conjunction which renders the sentence contingent or doubtful, care must be taken to put the verb in the subjunctive mood in these languages, when in the English (there being no change in the termination of the verb) the distinction is marked solely by the conjunction, ex. gr.

Spanish —Tiene.	Si tenga.
Portuguese —Tem.	Si tinha.
Italian —Tiene.	Se tenga.
English —He has.	If he has.

The foregoing examples are in the present tense. However, if the sense is contingent and future, the English still say *if he have, which must be rendered in the Spanish and Portuguese by the future tense subjunctive mood, ex. gr.

Spanish —Si tuviere,	Portuguese —Si tiver :
but in the Italian by the future tense indicative mood.
ex. gr. Se terra,	If he shall have.

THE INTERJECTIONS.

There is nothing peculiar in the use of this part of speech, in the Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian languages, at all differing from the English in point of grammatical construction.

* This is becoming obsolete, and if he shall have is also in use.

RULES FOR THE ELISION OF THE FINAL VOWELS
IN THE ITALIAN.

The Italian language differs considerably from the Spanish and Portuguese in the great latitude which is allowed in the retrenchment of the final vowels of its words. The license which the poets have used, both in adding as well as in omitting syllables, as best suited the harmony of their verse, is very great, and forms a considerable difficulty in learning Italian poetry. This license is not however confined to poetry; but in order to write prose correctly, it is necessary to attend to the elisions of the final vowels which custom has now authorized.

1. The final vowel of the articles is dropped when the noun begins with a vowel or an h; as l' animo, *l' honore; except that gli should not lose its vowel unless the vowel of the noun is an i, nor in like manner le, unless the vowel of the noun is an e; as gl' ingegni, gli amori, *gli honori, l' eminenze, le anime, le ultime.

2. The vowel i beginning the article il is also dropped when this article follows a word ending in a vowel; as sopra 'l tetto, for sopra il, &c. tutto 'l mondo sa, fra 'l si e 'l no, &c.

3. The final vowel of the article lo is sometimes retrenched before a consonant; as no! so, sel crede, vel prometto, for no lo so, se lo crede, ve lo prometto.

* Honore and havere are now generally spelt without the h.

4. Mi, ti, ci, si, vi, di, da, ne, lose the final vowel before a vowel or an h; as *m' amate, l' ascolto, l' intende, c' importa, m' havete, *s' intende, v' inganna, d' anima, d' Antonio, n' arde, n' haverò.

5. When the pronoun che precedes a word beginning with an h, the he may be dropped; as *e' havete for *che havete.

6. The last syllable of these six words, uno, bello, grande, santo, quello, buono, must be retrenched when they precede a word beginning with a consonant; as un giorno, bel giardino, gran cerchio, san Pietro, quel pane, buon libro: but if the word following them begins with a vowel or an h, their final vowel only is dropped, *un' ardore, bell' aspetto, grand' ingegno, sant' Antonio, quell' huomo, buon' aspetto. In the plural number, and also in the feminine gender singular and plural, only grande admits of the retrenchment of its final syllable or vowel.

7. The final vowels of words which have for their penultimate letter, l, m, n, r, may be dropped; as il carnival passato, qual' signore, andiam presto, aman per l' onde i veloci delfini, fior grato, cor generoso.

8. The word which finishes a sentence or the member of a sentence;—words ending in a, except *hora and ancora;—words accented on the final syllable;—the words

* Now spelt without the h.

Apollo, affanno, collo, duro, inganno, pegno, oscuro, sostegno, strano, volo ; and also the terminations of the infinitive mood before a vowel, ought not to be retrenched.

9. Words beginning with an s followed by a consonant require the preceding word not to be retrenched : and if that word does not terminate in a vowel, the word beginning with an s takes an i before the s ; as bello studio, grande stato, per isdegno, in iscuola.

10. Gli before lo, la, le, or ne, takes an c after it ; as per darglielo, glieli renderete, gliene domanderete.

THE END.

La.Rom.

188078

Author Woodhouse, Richard

Title A Grammar of the Spanish, Portuguese, and University of Toronto

Library

DO NOT REMOVE THE CARD FROM THIS POCKET

Acme Library Card Pocket
Under Pat. "Ref. Index File" Made by LIBRARY BUREAU

